Able Men Yet Serve Democrats

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, Ill., July 21—All through the long, hot night before, delegates and political leaders had met and talked and had come back inevitably to one name.

So it was when Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois came to the speakers' stand and the brilliant lights caught him, and his face lighted with a smile, there came spontaneously swelling up a great torrent of sound. It was, indeed, the only real demonstration, with no taint of organization or cheer leading, that the vast stockyards hall has seen through all the Republican sessions and into the Democratic Party's beginnings.

For many of the delegates it was their first sight of the man whose name has dominated this convention's many caucuses and discussions, private and public. And for a moment or so they looked with curious examining eyes. They liked what they saw. The pleasant, friendly faced, smiling man offered a new face and a good one, and so the volume of their cheering rose and swelled until it seemed to come from every seat in the big hall.

And then they heard him. And, quite remarkable for these times, he had something to say.

'Sail'

He gave them the text from the late Justice Holmes, who said: "We must sail sometimes with the wind, sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift or lie at anchor."

"Here and abroad," said the Governor, "they see in us an awareness that there is no turning back; they see in us, the Democratic Party, that has steered this country through a storm of spears for 20 years, an understanding of a world in the torment of transition from an age that has died to an age struggling to be born."

And so the speech moved on. It was well written. It was filled with new phrases which gamboled like lambs at play and with sharp-pointed shafts which went into the hide of the Republican elephant like the barbs of picadors. He is no Roosevelt for oratory. But he knows what he is saying because they are his own words and thoughts.

"Where we have erred, let there be no denial," he cried to the delegates. "Where we have wronged the public trust, let there be no excuses. Self-criticism is the secret weapon of democracy, and candor and confession are good for the political soul. But we will never appease, nor will we apologize for our leadership, in the great events of this critical century, from Woodrow Wilson to Harry Truman."

He concluded and the convention was suddenly alive and cheerful, men and women smiled at one another and talked excitedly.

Douglas

Quickly the chair brought forward another man, and his name, too, awakened cheers loud and spontaneous and having in them, too, something of affection.

This was a name they knew pretty well. It was that of the white-haired senator from Illinois, the former college professor who, at 50, volunteered in the Marines and was wounded in combat on a Pacific island assault.

When Sen. Paul Douglas began, those of us who had seen the Republican Convention knew that suddenly, within the space of an hour, in its very first day, the Democrats had produced two significant addresses, while the GOP program had been full of hack oratory and produced not a single address of importance or meaning, until the last minute when the nominee, Dwight D. Eisenhower, gave them his acceptance.

Paul Douglas said, "I am going to talk about Korea," and he did. The Republicans had ignored that issue, save by indirection and to allow Gen. Douglas MacArthur to use it as a line on which to hang his enormous and almost unbelievable vanity.

Senator Douglas laid all of it on the line. Korea is not a futile war. It has saved Korea and Japan and much of Asia. It has saved Europe, too. He was magnificent in his sarcasm as he pinned down MacArthur, Hoover and other Republicans with their own double-talk on the subject.

He used only one arm to gesture. The other is crippled and shattered by Japanese machinegun bullets.

The Democrats and their party still have men to serve it.

Steel Union Wipes Out Parley Gains

By A. H. RASKIN

New York Times News Service

PITTSBURGH, July 21—Four top industry executives made a dramatic personal appearance before 175 steel union leaders here today, but failed to sway the union away from a decision to scrap all the compromise wage and union-shop proposals on which tentative agreement had been reached in weeks of efforts to settle the 50-day-old steel strike.

The Wage Policy Committee of the United Steelworkers of America, CIO, voted unanimously to go back to its insistence on all benefits recommended last March by the Wage Stabilization Board, including a full union shop and a wage package totaling 26.4 cents an hour.

GAP WIDENED

The committee's action widened a gap that had been narrowed almost to the vanishing point by 10 days of hectic industry-union conferences.

Appearance of the industry executives at the union meeting was the first in the 16-year history of the steel union. John A. Stephens, vice-president of U. S. Steel; Joseph M. Larkin of Bethlehem Steel; John H. Morse, Bethlehem's counsel, and Ben Boreell, chairman of the board of Jones & Laughlin, walked into the conference hall in William Penn Hotel.

SURPRISE VISIT

The policy committee, at the suggestion of Philip Murray, president of the union, had voted to invite the industry representatives to attend the afternoon session, but no one had seriously expected they would accept.

As soon as the startled unionists saw them walk in, they burst into applause and cheers.

The committee listened in silence to the industry speakers and rewarded each with polite applause.

Before he introduced Stephens as the first industry spokesman, Murray stressed the three points he regarded as major obstacles to ending the strike.

The first point, Murray asserted, was the companies' refusal to

W. Coast Quake Kills 11; 9 Children Die in Dark

TEHACHAPI, Calif., July 21—(AP)—An earthquake of such shattering force that it literally moved mountains hit this little town with its greatest fury before dawn today, killing 11, injuring more than a score of others and leaving much of the town homeless.

Nine of the victims were children. They died in the dark as the quake sent walls of every major building in the town tumbling. The big Tehachapi State Prison for women was badly damaged, but there were no injuries among the frightened felons.

WARREN FLIES TO SCENE

Gov. Earl Warren, Sen. William F. Knowland and state civil defense leaders flew to Tehachapi to personally assess the damage. Aid was rushed over buckled highways, some of them partly blocked by landslides.

Amid the rush to bring help to the stricken town came a cautious warning from a top-ranking seismologist that another quake might come within 36 hours, and an estimate from another that the earth high in the Tehachapi Mountains may have moved 40 to 50 feet along the fault line.

CARS MAY BE BURIED

On the four-lane ridge route, where a huge slide poured down on the freeway, a highway patrolman said "the whole top of a mountain seems to have slid off." Rescuers, using bulldozers, pushed efforts to move the slide on a totally unconfirmed report that one or more cars might be buried.

There were these other highlights as the assessments of damage took form hours after the first violent shock:

TUNNELS DAMAGED

Four railroad tunnels were "damaged extensively," and the Southern Pacific estimated it might be four to five days before repairs could be made. The route

Privileged Run GOP --McKinney

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, July 21 (AP) — Chairman Frank E. McKinney tonight lauded the Democratic party as the one of peace and prosperity and said that "never before have the forces of wealth and privilege been so strongly mobilized for an assault on the thing it stands for."

"The rich, the powerful, the privileged dominate the Republican party today, just as they dominated its ancestor, the Federalist party," McKinney said in his prepared address of welcome to the Democratic National Convention.

MOMENTOUS CAMPAIGN

"The most momentous political campaign in the history of our country has begun," he continued. "Its outcome will determine whether government of the people shall remain with and for the people, or be leased to the privileged few, for their personal profit.

"For more than a century and a half, the Democratic party has stood for government by the people, and for the people, against the traditional Republican doctrine, that the people cannot be trusted to govern themselves.

"The Republican party, while piously voicing its grave concern for the sanctity of our Constitution, hopes by its attack upon social security, and other Democrat-sponsored measures, to nullify the most basic and important provisions of the Constitution itself.

GENERAL WELFARE

"Nothing is more obnoxious to them than the general welfare clause, upon which so much of our Democratic legislation is based. They would repeal this clause completely by killing legislation based upon it."

McKinney's address was a quick capsule history of the nation, from the Democratic viewpoint. He stressed the basic theme that the Democrats have always fought for the general welfare while the Republicans have been concerned only with special interests.

Farouk Asks Ex-Premier To Form Cabinet

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 21 (AP)—King Farouk I tonight asked former Premier Naguib al Hilaly Pasha to form a new Cabinet, Egypt's fifth in six months.

Hilaly Pasha, who stepped down from the premiership only 18 days ago, was instructed to start consultations immediately toward setting up a government. He will succeed Hussein Sirry Pasha, who resigned Sunday.

Both Hilaly Pasha and Sirry Pasha are independents. Harez Afifi Pasha, chief of the royal Cabinet, said earlier today that the King had refused at first to accept Sirry Pasha's resignation. Farouk tried to settle this latest government crisis without a change in government.

Russell Balks at Pledge Pact But Seating Truce Is Drafted; Speech Spurs Stevenson Boom

Ex-Sen. Myers To Organize Floor Strategy

By JAMES RESTON

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, July 21—The Draft-Stevenson boom at the Democratic convention gained solid support today from an unexpected source—Governor Stevenson of Illinois himself.

The avowedly "reluctant candidate," who has been trying to talk himself out of the Democratic presidential nomination for the last five months, talked himself into the leading candidate's role this morning with a 15-minute address that impressed the convention from left to right.

Accordingly a secret caucus of supporters was held this afternoon and it was decided to go forward at once with plans to put his name in nomination by Thursday and to draft him for the nomination despite his persistent statements—repeated again tonight to reporters—that he did not want the honor.

The caucus also decided that former Senator Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, for a time the Democratic whip in the Senate, should organize the Draft-Stevenson movement on the convention floor. Myers started working with Walter Johnson, co-chairman of the Stevenson-for-President Committee, in the Conrad Hilton Hotel tonight.

Governor Schricker of Indiana, who attended the caucus with Myers and other pro-Stevenson delegates, was asked to nominate Stevenson but postponed acceptance pending approval of his delegation.

In what was billed a welcoming speech but sounded to many dele-

Social Gains Imperiled By GOP, Keynoter Says

By DONALD SANDERS

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, July 21—(AP)—Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts tonight lambasted the Republicans as "fossils" and declared their nominee, Dwight D. Eisenhower, is a complete novice unqualified for the presidency.

In a keynote speech to the Democratic National Convention, Dever said the "selfish opportunists" who chose Eisenhower are bent on wiping out all social and economic gains of the last 20 years.

"We have vanquished them before — we shall vanquish them

DAVIS MAKES MOTION

Reading of the names of Governor Dever as temporary chairman and of Mrs. India Edwards as temporary vice-chairman got a big hand from the delegates.

Text on Page 6.

Rep. James Davis of Georgia moved the adoption of the report naming the temporary officers, and it was carried.

Dever's speech came as the climax of a series of addresses made at today's sessions of the 31st Democratic national convention.

Illinois' Gov. Adlai Stevenson extended a welcome to the delegates shortly after the opening session, which got under way at noon, 31 minutes late. Senator Douglas of Illinois followed in the afternoon with a spirited defense of the administration's Korean action. Democratic National Committee Chairman Frank McKinley joined the parade of speakers at the night session.

again," he declared in his address.

PRAISE AND SCORN

As keynote speeches invariably do, Dever's blended high praise for his own party with scorn and derision of the opposition.

The governor said those who listened to the Republican convention held in the same hall two weeks earlier "heard only the voice of the fossil."

Borrowing a sentence pattern from the Gettysburg address of the GOP hero Abraham Lincoln, Dever

Plot To Split Party Is Seen By Russell

By M. L. ST. JOHN
Constitution Political Editor

CHICAGO, July 21—Presidential candidate Dick Russell, some of whose friends are being asked to take "loyalty pledges," charged Monday that "a deliberate effort is being made to divide the Democratic Party by a group of people who are more interested in their own local political situation than in the welfare of the party."

This was his reply to a news conference question on whether some groups were trying to "bait" Southern states into walking out of the convention to destroy Russell's presidential chances.

Governor Talmadge of Georgia told The Constitution that the Georgia delegation is not going to walk out of the convention.

Talmadge said: "We are not going to walk out and I don't believe they can put us out. We are going to support the right of Texas and Mississippi Democrats not to take a loyalty pledge.

"Our Georgia delegation cannot take any such pledge because the Georgia Democratic executive committee in naming us passed a resolution which stated we could not bind the Georgia party or any member of it by our convention actions."

Talmadge said it would take a vote of two-thirds of the convention to expel the delegation of any state and he didn't believe the group sponsoring the "loyalty pledge" could muster that many votes.

The Georgia candidate struck at Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. of New York, who acted as agent of presidential candidates Estes Kefauver and Averell Harriman in demanding the pledge.

"I understand Mr. Roosevelt was elected to Congress on some ticket other than the Democratic ticket," Russell stated. "It is strange that he would try to exact a loyalty pledge from people who have been Democrats all their lives."

ASKED FOR NAMES

Newsmen asked Russell to identify those persons who were "trying to wreck" the Democratic Party.

"I will not call names," he replied, "but the people who are

Rules Change 'Now' Rapped By Georgian

By JOE HALL

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—Representatives of several leading candidates for the Democratic nomination sought last night to bind individual delegates to take no action to keep the party's nominees off ballots in their states.

But Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, backed by many Southerners for the nomination, quickly balked at the plan.

"GRAVE DOUBTS"

He issued a statement saying:

"I have grave doubts as to the wisdom of imposing new rules on delegates already chosen to this convention under existing rules and state laws. I can see no objection to the proposed changes to be applied in the future, but I am opposed to ex-post facto laws and rules.

"I am also quite confident that the politics of individuals rather than any desire for party unity has prompted these 11th hour suggestions for this change in the rules."

Early today there was considerable doubt when the rules change would be decided on the floor of the convention. Late last night a 50-minute recess had been called to enable the embatled delegates to reach agreement on a modified "loyalty" pledge. With the reconvening hour long since passed, there was no indication that the talks were getting anywhere. However, the session was reconvened at 12:25 a. m. with every indication a long floor fight was at hand.

Back of the tangled situation was the old North-South fight over federal civil rights bills. The Democratic National Convention was faced with a threat that, if it nominates a candidate unwelcome to the South on a platform calling for stiff federal civil rights legislation, several Southern states might bolt the ticket.

So Averell Harriman and Sen. Estes Kefauver, candidates for the presidential nomination, wanted a loyalty pledge that the delegates

There is a chance a compromise is in the future of the platform squabble, a New York Times writer declares. The story is on Page Two. Also on Two is a story of labor's role in yesterday's proceedings. This dispatch tells how AFL and CIO officials gave Vice-President Barkley the word they would not support him.

New York's delegation is looking toward Governor Stevenson of Illinois, to the horror of Favorite Son Averill Harriman. The story is on Page Five. Senator Douglas of Illinois threw the "Korean issue" right back at the Republicans yesterday. He pointed out that GOP leaders Eisenhower, MacArthur and Dulles had a hand in proceedings touching on that conflict. See Page Five.

Outlawing Water Waste Is Considered

City Council's Waterworks committee chairman James E. Jackson Monday night threatened to ask for a city ordinance outlawing non-essential use of drouth-hit water supplies.

Jackson's statement came after water pressure in Kirkwood and West End, both low-pressure areas, were reduced to such extent Monday that it created what the waterworks chairman called "a serious hazard in the event of fire."

Meanwhile the weatherman predicted more blistering heat for Atlanta Tuesday and Wednesday. He said the mercury is expected to range from 76 to 98 both days with only a slight chance of thundershowers seen for Tuesday afternoon. Monday's extremes were 78 and 99.

Jackson attributed the low water pressure to widespread watering of lawns during the hours of 4 to 8 p. m. despite frequent pleas by officials asking citizens to refrain from the practice during the drouth.

Barkley Boom Wanes; Sounds Like Adlai Now

By RALPH McGILL

CONVENTION HALL, CHICAGO, July 22—As the convention crowd went wearily toward bed in the early hours of Tuesday with the first day of the Democratic Convention behind them, the best information was that Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the reluctant candidate, would be nominated on the second ballot once the delegates got around to balloting Wednesday night or Thursday.

There was of course a furious fight going on to halt him, with all other candidates toiling mightily and offering to exchange delegates in any manner to establish a road block. It had a chance because in the desperate hours of political conventions when the sands shift with each passing breeze, nothing may be said for sure, and the best laid plans fade and die.

The Barkley boom had vanished, gone as midnight neared and the Vice-President announced his withdrawal from the race.

In a way it is one of the cruelest stories to come out of our national politics, and it illustrates how bitter and merciless is this fight for control of the party.

On Monday morning a group of labor leaders from the CIO and AFL met with the Vice-President. I have the story from a man who was there.

"All of us love Barkley," he said. "And we told him so. We told him that first. Then we told him that we were not unaware of the record he has made in behalf of the American working man or of his entire record from 1912. But then we had to say that we knew a coalition composed of those also backing Senator Russell, but who

Votes Hinge On Platform, Says Reuther

Asserts Victory Must Be People's

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CHICAGO, July 21—Labor leaders told the Democratic Party's platform writers today that if they stood for "people against privileges" the party would be continued in power.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, speaking before the preliminary drafting committee, said: "If any labor leader says he can deliver the labor vote he is kidding you or kidding himself. No labor leader can deliver the labor vote. He can use his influence and try to mobilize his people around issues, and they will deliver the vote. Unless the platform gives us the tools to work with the vote won't be delivered."

BREAD AND FREEDOM

He pleaded for a fight against poverty, hunger, insecurity and desperation," declaring that bread and freedom are compatible and that "no political party that compromises on these fundamental issues when freedom is challenged can win."

Prior to the platform hearing, ten labor leaders from the AFL and the CIO met at breakfast with Vice-President Alben W. Barkley. It was understood they told Barkley they held him in high esteem but they could not support him for the nomination for president because some of his leading supporters were, in their opinion, anti-deal or, at least, nonprogressive. They referred to James A. Farley of New York, former national chairman, and Frank E. McKinney, the present chairman, among others.

Barkley was reported to have said he always had been and always will be a friend of labor and that he could not help the fact that he was supported by some whom labor did not like.

DISMAY REPORTED

When William Green, President of the AFL, and George Meany, Secretary-Treasurer, came to Chicago to appear before the platform group they were reported to have been somewhat dismayed by the announced decision of other AFL leaders to reject Barkley. They have always regarded Barkley as a friend of labor.

The speakers from the CIO and the AFL in general spoke in harmony on all issues, except that the AFL asked for a minimum wage of $1 an hour and the CIO asked for $1.25. The Fair Labor Standards (wage and hour) Act now provides for a minimum of 75 cents an hour.

Welly K. Hopkins, General Counsel of the United Mine Workers, confined himself to arguments against the Taft-Hartley law.

James B. Carey, Secretary, also spoke for the CIO. The AFL speakers were Green, Meany and Charles J. McGowan, a vice-president.

McGowan, who also testified before the Republican drafting committee, praised the Democrats' reception of labor and said "the contrast is obvious."

Home Rule Petition Fails At Savannah

SAVANNAH, July 21—(AP)—The petition of the joint committee for council-manager government, asking the mayor and aldermen to call a special charter election under the state home rule act, was certified as "unsufficient" today by the clerk of city council, Mrs. Nola M. Roos.

In a report to the council, Mrs. Roos reported the petition, which must have 10,536 valid signatures of voters qualified to vote in the general city election, did not have but 9,479 signatures after being purged.

Mrs. Roos stated the following number of signatures had been stricken for the reasons given: not registered, 1,855; not registered for last city election, 261; duplicate signatures, 730, and not residents of the city, 150.

Shortly after the announcement, Frank S. Cheatham Jr., chairman of the joint committee, who admitted he was "angry," told the Rotary Club, where he had previously been announced as speaker on the subject of the city manager issue, that the people of Savannah will have an opportunity to vote on home rule "if it is the last thing we ever do."

"Nice timing," Cheatham told the Rotarians. "This roadblock does not surprise me. I said last year when I debated here (before the club) they were chopping down trees with our signs on them, and now they are chopping down the petition itself." He said the list of challenged names would be checked by the committee.

Texas Factions Vow To Unite, Work for Ike

DALLAS, July 21 (AP)—Leaders of Texas' warring Republican factions buried the hatchet here today and vowed to work together for the election of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Members of the GOP State Executive Committee and other Texas GOP leaders met in a called "harmony" session and took steps to unite the Taft and Eisenhower factions.

Orville Bullington of Wichita Falls, chairman of the State Executive Committee, resigned today after leaders of the two factions pledged unity in efforts to elect Eisenhower and make Texas a two-party state.

TV Warning Fails To Calm Convention Chaos

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, July 21—(AP)—This was the convention that was going to be different. It would start on time and everyone would be ever so wellbehaved.

Remember?

Well, the famous political tradition—that no convention starts on time—remains unbroken. In spite of all the promises, the kickoff was 31 minutes behind schedule.

Delegates had a small slip of paper on their seats, warning them:

"YOU will be on television. "Some 140 million eyes will watch YOU."

And then, in smaller type: "Remember — YOU may not know it — television may be showing a closeup picture of YOU."

If it had any effect, neutral observers didn't notice it.

Ewing Terms Truman Draft 'Not Possible'

WASHINGTON, July 21—(INS). Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing left Washington today for the Democratic Convention in Chicago with a message from President Truman and a prediction that the Chief Executive would refuse a draft.

Ewing a so-called "inactive" candidate for the presidential nomination, also asserted that the controversial civil rights issue can be settled without causing the South to bolt the Democratic Party.

Ewing said he would like to see Mr. Truman drafted for the nomination "first, even ahead of myself." But he added: "I don't think it's possible."

The federal official declined to comment on his message from the White House except to say that he had received a letter from the President shortly before he took off and that he was taking with him.

President Back at Desk, Still Mum

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP) — President Truman kept a tight silence on his strategy for the Democratic National Convention today as he returned to his desk at the White House after a four-day hospital checkup.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short said Truman was "feeling fine" and looking "chipper."

With an eye on television broadcasts of the Chicago convention, the Chief Executive cleared away the last of scores of bills passed by the Senate and House in the final days of the 82nd Congress.

White House records showed the President signed a total of 339 public bills and 612 private measures for the last session. He vetoed nine bills—four by the "pocket veto" route of letting them die without his signature.

One of his vetoes, against the McCarran-Walter Immigration Bill was overriden by Congress and became law.

While Truman kept political bigwigs in the dark, Secretary Short took a swipe at the swarm of guessing-game rumors flying between Washington and Chicago as to the President's choice for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Short said some of the rumors are so exclusive they "will remain exclusive permanently." In other words, he meant they were so flimsy they would never be substantiated.

Ridgway was met at the airport by U. S. Ambassador John Peurifoy and Greece's top military leaders.

Rights Plank Compromise Sought by Florida Woman

Asked Hands-Off by U. S., Constitutional Privilege Vow

CHICAGO, July 21—The first sign of an overture from a Southern source for a compromise on a civil rights plank in the Democratic platform for 1952 came today.

It appeared to give confirmation to indications that the biggest platform issue, that had threatened to throw the party's national convention into a battle that would start a bolting and third party movement by Southern delegates such as occurred in 1948, might be settled after a minimum of family squabbling.

Today's overture was tendered by a Gray Lady from Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. J. D. Alderman, an alternate delegate who earlier had arisen in the midst of civil rights argument and with a rebel drawl bawled out Northern carpetbaggers for persisting in the meddling in Southern affairs that started after the War Between the States.

PROPOSES PLANK

At that time, Mrs. Alderman offered a proposed plank for the platform. It called, in effect, for a keeping of federal hands off the affairs of the sovereign states.

Today as the platform hearings closed and the job of drafting the precise planks was handed to a special subcommittee, Mrs. Alderman arose again. She offered an amendment to her original plank, composed, she explained, after talking to many Southern people.

The amendment, although cloaked in the caution marked by all other plank drafts, proposed that there be "the immediate passage by Congress of adequate laws to assure every citizen of such rights to which they are entitled under the Constitution of the United States, as amended by the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments."

This, conceded to be a comparatively small move in itself, was embraced largely as an added signal that, by Wednesday or before the Democrats would be able to go before the convention with a civil rights plank that "might not please the South but would not incite revolt."

GENERAL PATTERN

It still appeared that the general pattern for such a plank would be found in a bill which the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee approved about 72 hours before the 82d Congress adjourned last Monday.

This measure was approved by a committee that knew the Congress would quit without having a chance to act on it. Thus, it is suggested that it was approved as an instrument having the backing of a strong congressional group tha would have powerful bargaining powers in the writing of a platform for 1952, in which it was expected that congressional action in 1953 would be pledged or insinuated.

Principal supporters of the bill include Senators Humphrey of Minnesota and Lehman of New York, both members of the convention's platform committee.

PERSUASIVE GROUP

The Humphrey bill, which also is co-sponsored by Sen. Ives (Rep. N. Y.,), calls for a federal commission to combat, in advisory, conciliatory and persuasive capacities, discriminations in employment because of race, color, religion or national origin, it would have the power of subpoena (a point which might, after all, cause the south to balk unless this phase were eliminated), to ask courts to issue cease and desist orders where discriminations were found, and to cause punishment for contempt where compliance was refused.

However, the measure would provide that the federal commission would keep hands off in the cases of states that had their own civil rights laws.

DOUBLE, DOUBLE!

Since 1900 every president of the United States has had a double letter in his name. Guess who has two "doubles," then read Leo Aikman's column on Page 4.

Gas Stations Now Are Dispensing Free Gas and Air to Delegates

By BOB HOPE

(Written Expressly for International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 21—(INS)—Chicago's really steaming this week with the Democratic convention.

Some of the Democrats were late getting here. Their maps didn't arrive from the automobile club and they couldn't find their way out of Washington.

A lot of the delegates drove in. You can tell they are Democrats. They've got a Republican on each bumper.

Chicago is really lovely this time of year. It's a large pressure cooker with a mayor.

But this Windy City is really putting out the welcome mat. Yesterday, I saw a sign on a gas station that read: "Gas, oil and free air for delegates."

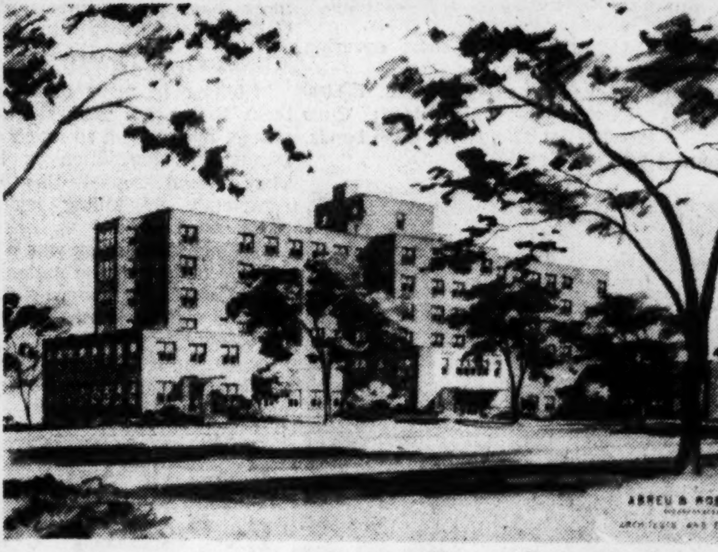
Southern Federal presents GROWING with ATLANTA AND GEORGIA



Beautiful, symmetrical, functional, this new addition to St. Joseph's when finally completed will be a living monument to the wisdom and beneficence of this generation.

ST. JOSEPH'S INFIRMARY
A TRIBUTE
To Those Who Minister Unto the Needs of Others

May 2, 1880, the ATLANTA CONSTITUTION carried an article which read, in part, "Atlanta has a hospital at last. It is a permanent institution which will grow in importance and usefulness as the city's needs increase." Since its inception St. Joseph's has gone forward continuously, 24 hours a day, serving those who suffer, regardless of their religious faith. The history of the institution represents an epoch of self sacrifice and devotion to duty in the work of mercy and healing. St. Joseph's is truly growing in importance as needs increase . . . an institution worthy of the Cause to which it is dedicated.

UN Troops Claim Top of Old Baldy

B-29's Batter Power Plant

SEOUL, Tuesday, July 22 (AP)—U. N. infantrymen today claimed the shell-pocked crest of Old Baldy, a strategic hill on the Western Korean Front which neither side could hold under Monday's intense artillery barrages.

B-29 Superforts bombed the Changjin No. 2 hydroelectric plant last night and reported "excellent" results. Light bombers hit Red supply points, fuel dumps and front line positions. Extensive repair work had been spotted at the power plant.

U. N. warships yesterday bombarded Red positions and supply lines along the east and west Korean coasts. The battleship Iowa's 16-inch rifles passed the firing mark rung up in World War II.

But the heavy fighting was west of Chorwon on the slopes of Old Baldy.

"A curtain of fire" from big American guns swept Chinese troops off the crest Monday, the U. S. Eighth Army reported. A briefing officer said an estimated 1,039 Communist casualties were inflicted in the first five days of fighting.

The terrific barrage on the 177th anniversary of the U. S. Army artillery, succeeded Monday in clearing off the Reds after eight infantry counterattacks had failed.

Secret Talks Fail To Raise Truce Hopes

MUNSAN, Tuesday, July 22 (AP)—Allied and Communist truce delegations met for the 15th time in secret today to debate the stalemated issue of prisoner exchange.

There was nothing to encourage hope for settlement of the remaining dispute blocking an armistice.

The departure from the Allied camp of Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols seemed to point up the belief that the secret talks were not making headway. Nuckols has been the official spokesman for the U. N. Command delegation almost from the start of the Korean armistice negotiations more than a year ago.

Nuckols is returning to Tokyo to resume his duties as chief public information officer for the Far East Air Forces.

Nuckols was replaced on the truce delegation staff by Army Lt. Col. Joseph J. Borchert, up to now chief censor for the Far East Command.

70 Indicted In N. C. Drive On Flogging

WHITEVILLE, N. C., July 21—(INS)—A Columbus County grand jury returned 70 indictments today in connection with floggings in what officials described as the "clean-up" of prosecutions of the Ku Klux Klan.

The new grand jury, empaneled today, will consider the final 16 possible indictments presented by state prosecutors tomorrow.

Thirty-five persons have already been tried in the North Carolina "crackdown" on night-riding and flogging incidents—22 in federal court and 11 in state court.

The new charges were returned today as a special venire of 150 men was drawn in Whiteville for the trial of Klan Imperial Wizard Thomas L. Hamilton.

The court today denied a defense motion for a continuance and ordered the prospective jurors into court for Tuesday morning.

Hamilton, 44, of Leesville, S. C., was indicted on charges of conspiracy to kidnap and assault in connection with four Klan floggings in this state last fall. He is scheduled to be the first defendant to go on trial.

Argentina's Eva Peron

Eva Better, Peron Returns To His Office

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 21 (AP)—President Juan D. Peron went back to work at his office today for the first time since his blonde wife, Eva, took a grave turn for the worse three days ago.

The fact that he left his wife's side indicated that she was continuing to hold her own.

A medical bulletin early this morning said there had been no change in Mrs. Peron's condition since the last announcement of a slight improvement 24 hours previously.

Mrs. Peron suffered a relapse following an operation of an undisclosed nature nine months ago. The operation was performed after she had consulted a New York cancer and tumor specialist.

Qavam Quits To End Iran Bloodshed

By NATE POLOWETZKY

TEHRAN, Iran, July 21 (AP)—Two days of bloody pitched battles between government troops and Nationalist mobs, supported by Communists, ended in the resignation tonight of Iran's new Premier, Ahmed Qavam.

Qavam's pledge to seek a settlement of the Iranian quarrel with Britain over oil touched off the mobs' fury. Wild disorder erupted throughout the capital and in other parts of the country. The most violent clash and most casualties occurred when screaming demonstrators tried to storm the Parliament Building and were fired on. Twenty persons reportedly were killed in Tehran.

(In London unconfirmed reports to British government officials said Prince Ali Reza, brother of the Shah, had been seriously wounded when he appeared near the Parliament Building.)

Water Stymies Efforts To Solve Mystery of Collie's 3-Week Vigil

SPRING CITY, Mo., July 21—(AP)—Efforts to solve the mystery of the watchful collie were stymied today when a mine owner lowered into an abandoned shaft reported water gushing from cross drifts halfway down.

Workmen estimated that at least one or two days will be required before the shaft can be cleared sufficiently to make another try. Clyde Hymer, one of the mine's lessees, was lowered nearly 100 feet down the shaft.

An estimated 1,000 persons watched the operation.

The collie dog, whose 22-day vigil prompted the search, was also nearby.

No one knows exactly what is expected to be in the shaft. They hope to find the answer by reaching a platform on the 125-foot level, 30 feet from the bottom. The platform would catch anything that fell into the shaft.

Pumping operations will continue until, workers hope, most of the water will have been cleared from the walls and tunnels.

2 Executives Slain In Oregon Park

MEDFORD, ORE., July 21—(UP)—The bodies of two executives of a General Motors subsidiary were found today in Crater Lake National Park, each shot once through the head.

They were C. P. Culhane, 55, Detroit, Mich., general sales manager of United Motors Service, and A. M. Jones, 56, Concord, Calif., West Coast sales manager of United Motors.

Lou Hallock, chief park ranger for Crater Lake, said the two men definitely had been murdered.

Gov. Dever Lays It on the Line

"A little more than a week ago, we listened long and carefully to our Republican friends from this very rostrum. In vain we waited for a hopeful program for this challenging atomic age. We heard only the voice of the fossil."

In these opening phrases of his keynote speech to the Democratic National Convention Tuesday night, Governor Paul Dever, of Massachusetts, laid the framework for an effective and devastating attack on Republicans and Republicanism. The address itself provides the framework for victory in November if the party can bind up its wounds from the wrangling that now threatens unity. However, his references to "legal implementation" of civil rights will not be exactly conducive to that.

The Democratic keynoter made a fighting speech and offered a positive program. In contrast to the lofty words of General MacArthur and the obvious longing to return to the past that rose forth from the endless procession of Republican speakers, Governor Dever accepted the challenge and laid the record on the line. He did it in a manner equally as effectively as did Alben Barkley in 1948.

Point by point he ripped the Republican campaign documents to bits. He exposed the hypocrisies in their platform, the platitudinous objectives, the negative approach, and the evasion of issues. He dissected the GOP convention attacks upon the Democrats and threw them back in their laps.

From foreign policy to the handling of agricultural matters, the Massachusetts governor laid it on. On foreign policy, he shouted: "Congressional Republicans have voted to strip our defenses; antagonize our Allies; and to ignore the poverty, hunger, and distress which are the principal well-springs of communism."

On agriculture: "Since 1925, for the most part, the Republicans in Congress have opposed any and every program to aid, promote and maintain agriculture."

On the economic front: "So dynamic and flourishing is our economy that the necessary staggering expenditure (for defense) is only 20 per cent of the national production. Never in our history has our economy been so strong, so safe, so healthy, and so productive as it is today."

He traced the record. To the wage earners: "In terms of purchasing power your income has almost trebled (since 1932)." To the farmer: "The net income of the average farmer has increased 10 times, and in purchasing power four times since 1932." To business: "Corporate enterprise operated at a loss of $3,500,000,000 in 1932. In 1951, American corporate enterprise, after taxes, earned a profit of $18,000,000,000."

His brief references to civil rights packed dynamite to party unity, but even in this, the speech did not close the door to peaceful settlement of this issue.

This fighting address may not assure the Democrats victory in November. However, it is a positive document which will be difficult for the Republicans to explain away, regardless of the popularity of their candidate.

With this speech, some of the defeatism we have felt coming out of Chicago this week may be dissipated.

The Democrats Face Decisions for Victory

Whether or not Sen. Richard B. Russell wins the Democratic nomination is now being determined in committees and in caucuses in Chicago. And with these decisions lie the chances of party victory in November.

The struggle over the platform, in which the moderates are attempting to reach a compromise stand on civil rights and the FEPC, is likely to reach the convention floor.

Senators Lehman and Humphrey have announced their decision to fight for a "no retreat" position on this issue—a stand which caused the abortive Dixiecrat revolt in the 1948 convention.

Whether the convention ends in harmony or in another Southern walkout depends on compromise and settlement of these differences. So would Senator Russell's chances appear to depend upon the outcome.

A compromise on civil rights could be interpreted as a victory for the Georgia senator, whose chances for the nomination would be enhanced thereby. An uncompromising stand, with convention approval, could mean the opposite.

The South wants to continue to vote Democratic. The emotional effect of a compulsory civil rights program, with the dreaded FEPC, could result either in the South going to Eisenhower or at least in a denial of its electoral votes to the Democrats.

Senator Russell offers the best opportunity for a compromise, for keeping the South in line, and for continuing the basic principles which have governed the Democratic Party during most of its existence. We believe he is the best candidate in the field to unify the party and to carry it to victory.

Events in Troubled Iran Take Turn for Worse

Shortlived have been the hopes of the Western world that order and a friendly government were about to arise out of chaos in Iran.

Premier Ahmed Qavam, he who pledged to solve the oil crisis, has resigned in face of rioting, of violence near to revolution.

Extreme nationalists and Communists make up the angry mobs which have cut the tenure of the new premier to two days.

Iran remains in state of crisis, ever a tinder box in a highly inflammatory Middle East.

The immediate danger is that through the Tudeh Party the Communists will seize control. If they do, the situation will have gone from bad to worse.

The Communist Tudeh organization has offered an alliance with anti-British ex-Premier Mossadegh in a common front against "imperialism." At the same time the Reds insist that any anti-imperialism coalition include as an objective the expulsion of United States military missions and "Point Four Spies."

Should Mossadegh return to power under a deal like that the Communists would have in the door the proverbial camel's head. It doesn't take an Oriental to figure what would come next.

Thousands Learn Blessing of Giving

Some thought-provoking figures came out of State Auditor B. E. Thrasher's office Saturday.

They show that the average citizen in Georgia paid $66.45 in taxes during the last fiscal year and that he got back $63.03 in state services. A surplus for the year of almost $12,000,000 helps account for the difference.

Of the $66.45 tax toll, $27.19 was in sales tax. Mr. Average Citizen more than got that back in pay for the teachers who instruct his children, in salaries of the bus drivers who carry the children to school, in textbooks and other education expenditures.

The Georgians who paid a total of $51,638,840 in gasoline and oil taxes got their money back in roads and bridges.

The state income taxpayers chipped in $11.43 apiece and the consumers of beer-wine and liquor paid in $10,500,000. We could go on with an analysis of the tax receipts report. Statistics were made for that purpose.

But to us, in this budget and tax receipt table, one fact stands out—

Never before have Georgians asked and received as much from their state government. And, thanks to the sales tax, never before has the cost of those services been as widely distributed among the beneficiaries.

It is blessed to receive from the state. It is also blessed to give. The sales tax has made taxpayers of thousands of Georgians who formerly had been only on the receiving end.

The Leahy System Disciplines the Team

The sports world knows, admires and respects Frank Leahy, football coach at Notre Dame. The Leahy record as mentor of the Fighting Irish speaks well for itself.

Recently we have learned, through the Hudson Newsletter, that Frank Leahy has another team of which he can be proud. He and Mrs. Leahy have eight children, described as so well behaved and adjusted that they are a daily testimonial to the Leahy coaching genius.

"I may be old-fashioned," says their daddy, "but I think respect, obedience and courtesy are disappearing in too many American homes. We want our kids to learn these things. The hairbrush is the instrument of discipline, but it is wielded only in extreme cases. It works better now to ration their television rights."

The eight little Leahys are described as happy and spontaneous and possessive of a sense of security, even under their parents' old-fashioned discipline.

Other American families would do well to adopt the Leahy system—in this case not the "T" formation or single wing, but strict training rules and in an emergency the hairbrush applied to the backfield to keep the whole team in line.

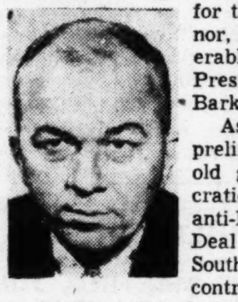
Barkley Boom About to Burst



CHICAGO—The big Barkley-for-President plot, well laid in advance, was on the point of disintegration and collapse as the Democratic convention got down to its work here. Its zealous promoters overplayed their hand and got it started too early. Consequently the plot was being exposed in time to alert the delegates that were about to be sold down the Chicago River for no purpose good for the Democratic Party nor, indeed, for the venerable party leader, Vice-President Alben W. Barkley.

As explained here in a preliminary analysis, the old guard of the Democratic Party, embracing anti-New Deal, anti-Fair Deal influences North and South, sought to regain control of the party by exploiting the confusion caused by a multiplicity of candidates in the first "open convention" of the party in 20 years.

Who better for their objectives than the greatly admired and beloved party warrior, Alben W. Barkley, whom everybody likes? Airily they dismissed his age. Everybody, they argued, can agree on the Vice-President. Among this old guard group, it was said further, are some who put control of the party ahead of victory in November.

Named among the leaders on this movement were James A. Farley, former national chairman during the early Franklin D. Roosevelt regime who, since his break with FDR over the third term in 1940, has aligned himself with the anti-New Deal, anti-Fair Deal wing of the party.

It was explained further that the chain of command in this plot led into the Democratic National Committee to include its present chairman—banker, businessman and promoter Frank E. McKinney of Indiana—and that it reached the South through the presidential candidacy of Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

This was all confirmed and publicly exposed when Big Jim Farley, on the eve of the convention, stood before a press conference here. He announced his choice for the nomination as Vice-President Barkley, with Senator Russell as his second choice, and with Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as a dim third choice. He thought a Barkley-Russell ticket would be a fine solution, even though both come from the South.

Jim Farley has performed many and valiant services for his party, and is a beloved and respected figure. He performed another service, perhaps unwittingly, when he let the cat out of the bag about the Barkley maneuver, for, despite the love that party leaders and delegates have for him, it is plain that this convention in the year 1952 is not inclined to follow the leadership of Jim Farley, as it refused to follow him in 1940, 1944 and 1948. It is a bit late according to the calendar.

The convention, as it opened, still was without leadership, still fumbling. That stood out clearly. Also striking was the inevitable clash of irreconcilable elements. Once again it was the old, familiar North-South conflict that raged about civil rights and economic issues and the identification of the various candidates with those issues that divide the party.

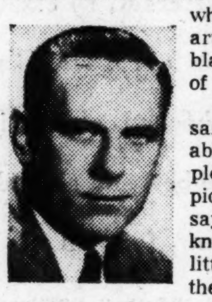
Stevenson People Are Hopeful Still

CHICAGO — The Stevenson-for-President people die hard, and not without scholarship. Their yearning for their man to change his mind resulted the other night in a communique from Stevenson's unauthorized headquarters which could have been the work of John Kieran. Most such ultimatums are dreary dross. But not this.



In all probability it was the work of a young University of Chicago history professor named Walter Johnson (of all things), who is one of the most articulate backers of the bland, balding governor of Illinois.

Stevenson has by now said no in every conceivable way except the simplest: "No." So his champions still hear him as saying "maybe," or "who knows?" To give him a little prod on the eve of the convention, the headquarters put out a communique directed more at the man than at the press.

Though it was printed on mimeograph paper headed by the word "Stevenson" in 90-point type, as if it had the stamp of his approval, it was meant only for Stevenson's eyes apparently.

It reminded him at the start of what was an interesting history lesson that he "stands an excellent chance of seeing history repeat itself."

Just 72 years ago, as the old crow flies (the thing said), James A. Garfield, rest his soul, was being plugged as the GOP candidate. Mr. Garfield said he wasn't interested.

He said it just as Stevenson has been saying it about the Democratic nomination. Maybe even stronger.

U. S. Grant was the big man before the balloting of that convention. He was running for (you'll excuse the expression) a third term. Nearly swung it, too. Got 304 votes on the first ballot. Garfield sat through 33 subsequent ballots, rooting for Sen. John Sherman of Ohio, whom he had nominated, and on the 34th ballot was astounded to learn that he had received 17 votes.

"I challenge the correctness of the announcement," he cried. "No man has a right, without the consent of the person voted for, to announce that person's name and vote for him in this convention. Such consent I have not given."

The chairman ruled him out of order. On the next ballot he got 50 votes and on the 36th he copped the nomination with 399.

The communique lists another man who didn't want to be president, but his people insisted on it. This man wrote to a good friend of his in 1859 named T. J. Pickett and said:

"I must in candor say I do not think myself fit for the presidency."

Fellow named A. Lincoln.

You know what happened to him.

Keep ducking, Ad, old boy.

Russell Shakes His Sectionalism Tag In Calling for Taft-Hartley Revision

Rome—As a Southerner and ardent supporter of Dick Russell, I endorse his Taft-Hartley stand wholeheartedly. Southerners (including the irked Virginia delegates) should realize this action by him was necessary to enable him to throw off the shackles of sectionalism.

Labor, in finding a champion for its primary contention issue, the Taft-Hartley Act, can now relegate the matter of civil rights to a position of secondary importance, as it should be. I view his action as an intelligent and justified political coup.

My candidate, win or lose, is Dick Russell.

ROBERT P. PURIFOY.

Southern Conservatives Called The Democrats' 'Old Guard'

Tuskegee—In your editorial "Russell Offers Chance for Victory" you present an interesting but paradoxical point of view.

You first offer hearty congratulations to the Republicans for overthrowing the Old Guard. Secondly, you would offer the same hearty congratulations to the Democrats if they would exhibit the same "high intelligence" and nominate Russell. Lastly, you attempt to convince yourself, but fail to convince others, that Russell is not a sectional candidate.

From this vantage point it would appear that Senator Russell, who has the full support of the arch conservatives, Governors Byrnes and Talmadge, is the counterpart of the Old Guard in the Democratic Party. Under such circumstances it is difficult to see how Russell could truly represent progressive government and even more difficult to see how he could possibly be anything but a sectional candidate—a Southern candidate.

Russell's Labor Position Arouses Atlantan's Protest

Atlanta—Senator Russell's sudden discovery that the Taft-Hartley Act is weighted against the working man and his later statement that he would have used the act in the steel strike is a prime example of a desperate politician trying to avoid defeat by talking out of both sides of his mouth at the same time.

The 80-day injunction clause is the most vicious part of the T-H Act. It is a form of slavery, or involuntary servitude, imposed on the worker for the benefit of a private employer. The steelworkers had already waited more than 80 days while theirs and management's cases were presented to a neutral board for recommendations. The workers accepted the board's opinion; the steel companies did not.

Senator Russell's statement that he would now enjoin the workers raises the suspicion that he would repeal the act only in order to enact another even more unfair. One of Russell's principal sponsors, Senator Byrd, says the law should be made even more favorable to management.

If the Byrds, Georges, Russells and Davises would openly join the Republican Party where they belong by virtue of their philosophy and voting records it would be better for both parties and the country. But to pose as Democrats for election purposes and then form a coalition with the reactionary wing of the Republican Party is a poor contribution to two-party government.

Atlanta Citizen Proposes No Exemptions on Gas Tax

Norman Park—Earmark gas tax for roads?

The people who put gas tax money in the treasury have children in the schools, old people on the pension rolls, and sick people in the hospitals. . . . Why designate road-building by constitutional amendment as the only way we can spend the money that all the people put in the treasury? Let all money from whatever source derived, go into the general treasury and be appropriated in the usual way for the services the state is committed to.

There is one thing the incoming legislature should correct. Special interests have railroaded a bill through a previous legislature exempting gas tax on fuel oils and gas for tractors and motor boats. Why? If it is right to tax gas for one purpose it is right to tax all gas for any and all purposes. The boys should wipe out that unjust business the first thing when they convene in January.

Yes, boys, let us vote agin the amendment earmarking gas tax for any purpose.

Floridans Find Allatoona Far From Being Safe

Atlanta—Allatoona! Safe??

The average member of John A. Public has just about as much business in a boat as a chicken. Frankly, our contact with the "landlubbers" on this beautiful body of water was enough to make even the "saltiest" of sailors cringe and shudder because most of them were "bird-brained" wherever safety was concerned.

Why not require a license for anything over 15 feet in length or 10 horsepower? This would require your people to know how to run a boat and some of the laws governing international waterways.

Having been raised on the largest lakes in central Florida and seeing how easy it is to receive injuries, we were greatly impressed by the "utter disregard" for the "small boats" on your beautiful lake.

Some Verse to Make A Reckless Driver Think

Ft. McPherson—I received my Elks Lodge paper from Burlington, Iowa, and in it was printed this poem on safety which I thought was excellent.

I am passing it along, thinking it may contribute to your campaign for safety.

"If everyone who drives a car
Could lie a month in bed,
With broken bones and stitched-up wounds,
Or fractures of the head.
And there endure the agonies
That many people do,
They'd never need preach safety
Any more to me or you

"If everyone could stand beside
The bed of some close friend
And hear the doctor say 'No hope'
Before the fatal end,
And see him there unconscious
Never knowing what took place,
The laws and rules of traffic
I am sure we'd soon embrace.

"If everyone could meet
And step into the darkened home
Where once the sunlight shined,
And look upon 'the vacant chair,'
Where Daddy used to sit,
I am sure each reckless driver
Would be forced to think a bit."

Why Do They Say Russell Can't Win?

What do people mean when they say that there is only an "outside chance" that Senator Russell can get the Democratic nomination?

The queer thing is that they say that no Southerner can get the nomination—then they go right on to say that Kefauver is the strong man! If this be so, the convention will see things in a TV program, a coonskin cap and a good-looking wife named Nancy that we cannot see! These items seem to be the Tennessean's chief stock in trade.

Surely the delegates to the convention, despite all the hurrahs, the noise, the confusion, the smoke, the crowded hall, will realize that this is a time of decision when our national life is in the balance. The words of Senator Russell are grim but true, "The issues of the campaign are national survival."

He alone recognizes the need for national unity, military strength, political astuteness, and a wise foreign policy. He alone can supply these needs. Who can offer more?

No Christianity Without Christ

What is your opinion of Christ? The tragic truth is that many people have never formed a real opinion of him. Bishop Arthur J. Moore makes this the first question in his new book, "The Mighty Saviour." He points out that Christ's birthday gave the world a new era, yet intelligent people go on living, never arriving at any deep convictions about Him.

For more than 40 years now, the giant intellect of Bishop Moore has been primarily concerned with Christ. He has preached Him around the world and has lived in intimate relationship with Christ. So I was particularly interested to read the bishop's statement of his belief in Christ.

First of all, he believes Jesus Christ was supernaturally born and that Christ was a supernatural person. The word supernatural means being beyond or exceeding the powers or laws of nature. So, though Christ took the form of humanity, he was above and beyond mere human laws. He was different from any person who has ever lived.

The bishop points out that you can have Buddhism without Buddha but you cannot have Christianity without Christ.

Second, He is the Christ of the sinless life. His cheeks were never wet with tears of repentance. His heart was never shot through with anguish because he had transgressed the laws of the Father. He stands today facing the critics of all centuries, asking, "Which of you convicteth me of sin?"

Third, He is the Christ of the vicarious death. Bishop Moore regrets that the word "vicarious" is dropping out of our modern religious terminology. It means doing for another, doing for me that which I could not do for myself. Christ on the cross is not an example of how a good man can bear pain, but the Son of God doing vicariously by His death that which man could not do for himself.

Fourth, He is the Christ of the victorious resurrection. If Christ did not rise from the dead, the whole plan of human redemption breaks down in utter failure. We cannot rely for our salvation upon a human Christ, and we certainly cannot trust it to a dead Christ. He arose again and went before us to the Father's house. We know not a dead Christ who hangs forever on a cross.

Finally, He is the Christ of the endless life. The bishop emphasizes that Christ is alive, and that men can today find Him. He is not a memory, He is not a myth, He is not a bit of history.

Christ could strike a light in the world of darkness; He could cure the race of its insanity; He could banish the clouds of war; He could give us a decent state, a friendly redeemed world, if enough of us would walk with Him.

Bishop Moore concludes by saying: "He is the voice of God, calling out to man. He is the heart of God, throbbing out to man. He is the hand of God, reaching out to man. So I say with Thomas, 'My Lord and my God.' I say with Peter, 'Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God.' "

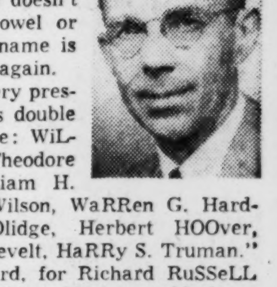
Russell Offers Double 'Double'

"Double or nothing" is the answer as far as being elected president is concerned according to a fanciful little essay in the Washington News Notebook. The item says:



"The political myth that nobody can be elected president who doesn't have a double vowel or consonant in his name is being circulated again.

"Since 1900 every president has had this double letter in his name: WiLLiam McKinley, Theodore ROOsevelt, WiLLiam H. Taft, WOOdrow Wilson, WaRRen G. Harding, Calvin COOlidge, Herbert HOOver, Franklin D. ROOsevelt, HaRRy S. Truman."

By that standard, for Richard RuSSeLL the way to the White House would be a brEEze!

"TAFT CARRIES APPLING"! But it was William H., not Robert, and the year was 1908, not 1952.

The Baxley News-Banner for Nov. 6 in '08 shows that Taft polled 250 votes in Appling County; William J. Bryan, 249, and Tom Watson, the Populist candidate, 244. Bryan carried the state; Taft, the nation.

ELEVEN COUNTIES in the United States have never gone wrong in a presidential election since 1860, if one can depend on a research report in The New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times. The 11 are: Strafford and Coos (N. H.); Jasper and Palo Alto (Iowa); Albany and Laramie (Wyo.); Fayette (Pa.); Marion (W. Va.); Vanderburgh (Ind.); Belmont (Ohio), and Crook (Oregon).

If you would gauge how things will go in November, wait until the Demos pick their man, then make a sampling swing around that circle.

"Your child," a voice shouted from the back of the hall.

Harriman Fights Bolt ToStevenson

Lehman Helps Keep New York in Line

By LEO EGAN

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CHICAGO, July 21 — Sentiment among New York delegates in favor of an early switch from Averell Harriman to another candidate, possible Governor Stevenson of Illinois, became so pronounced today that Harriman and Senator Lehman made special appeals to the delegation to defer making second choice commitments.

Two meetings of the delegation were held today without taking a poll on first ballot choices. The first, which got under way at 11 a. m., was adjourned to allow delegates to attend the opening session of the convention. The second, held during a recess, broke up without taking a vote because, Lehman said, a majority of the elected delegates were not present.

80 FOR HARRIMAN

Senator Lehman estimated Harriman would get 80 to 85 of the delegation's 94 first ballot votes. The balance will be divided among Senator Kefauver, Tennessee, social security administrator Oscar R. Ewing, Vice-President Barkley and possibly Stevenson.

Asked how long the bulk of the New York delegates would continue to vote for the mutual security administrator, the senator, who had been elected delegation chairman at the first meeting today, replied:

"I have no doubt they will stay so long as it is wise to do so."

In response to another question, the senator said he saw no signs of a revolt in the delegation against continued support of Harriman.

ESTIMATE HIGHER

The senator's estimate of Harriman's initial vote is somewhat higher than those of some other delegates. It is lower than the estimate by Paul E. Fitzpatrick, state Democratic chairman.

The senator's estimate gained strength from an announcement made by James A. Roe, Queens County chairman, that the eight Queens delegates will vote for Harriman "on the first ballot."

Lehman said he had been authorized by the delegation to cast New York's entire 94 votes in favor of the so-called "fair play" and "loyalty pledge" amendments to convention rules if the matter came to a floor vote. These changes are designed to compel contested delegations to pledge support of the convention candidates and platform before they are allowed to take their seats.

Ala. Strength Due for Adlai In Deadlock

CHICAGO, July 21 — (AP) — Governor Stevenson will get a majority of Alabama's votes as soon as anything approaching a deadlock occurs in the Democratic convention.

A poll of the 22-vote Alabama delegation gives the Illinois governor heavy second-choice strength from the two factions into which the delegates are split.

As it now stands, 10 votes are expected to go to Senator Russell on the first ballot, eight to Senator Kefauver and one-half vote to Stevenson. The other 3½ votes are listed as uncommitted.

Gene Starnes of Guntersville, a Russell man on the first ballot, said he "expects Governor Stevenson to be nominated" and to defeat General Eisenhower Nov. 4.

Many other delegates who would not permit use of their names said Stevenson would get their votes "as soon as it appears my man can't win." Some of these want Russell, and some want Kefauver.

Florida's Pepper Being Buzzed As a Nominee

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—The name of former Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida was injected by friends tonight into talk of the possible Democratic presidential nominee.

"Senator Pepper will be a candidate," said Philip J. Bernstein, Miami, who identified himself as president of the National Silver Co.

Pepper could not be reached for comment.

Bernstein and A. H. Philpot, formerly of the War Production Board, told a reporter Pepper reached Chicago Sunday, "saw the mixup the party is in and decided to run."

"MISS MITT" POURS TEA FOR THE SENATOR

Mrs. Eugene Talmadge and Candidate Russell

Miss Mitt's Right in There Helping Politick for Russell

CHICAGO, July 21—(UP)—"Miss Mitt" poured tea this afternoon.

It was hundreds of miles from her McRae, Ga., home, but the atmosphere was the same: Strictly political.

"Miss Mitt," as she's known throughout her home state, is the widow of the late Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, and the mother of Gov. Herman Talmadge.

She has been behind the scenes in politics most of her adult life. She says she loves it.

"Politicians are a lot of fun," she said. "It's a very interesting game."

Mrs. Talmadge came to Chicago to help Senator Russell in his drive for the Democratic presidential nomination. Three of the senator's sisters, Mrs. James Bowden, Atlanta; Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Ailey, Ga., and Mrs. J. K. Stacy, Washington, D. C., held a tea today for delegates, alternates and members of the press.

The small hotel parlor was oppressively hot. Photographers' flash bulbs added to the discomfort. Guests even glared at the small flames under the tea and coffee urns.

But Miss Mitt was content.

"I feel right at home," she said.

She insisted her candidate is "gaining ground every day. It looks fine, honey, just fine."

Sees Effective Polio Shot by Summer of '53

WASHINGTON, July 21—(UP)—The medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said today that scientists may produce by next summer an "effective" vaccine to prevent the dread disease of polio.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper said, however, there is only an "outside possibility" for finding the vaccine by 1953.

Van Riper said "real progress" has been made toward discovering a formula to halt the disease that has afflicted 30,000 Americans a year for the past four years. He said he fears this year's toll of victims would run even higher.

Van Riper made the statement in a copyrighted interview in the weekly magazine U. S. News & World Report.

Sen. Douglas Says Korea Withdrawal Was Backed All the Way by GOP

By FELIX BELAIR JR.

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago July 21—The Korean War, selected by Republicans as the Achilles-heel of the Truman administration, became the focal point of a Democratic counter attack today as Senator Douglas of Illinois cited the record of preinvasion events to show that prominent Republicans had recommended every step taken.

The Illinois senator got the Democratic National Convention off to a flying start and set a fighting standard for other opening speakers when he charged that the withdrawal of American troops from Korea had been recommended by the Republican presidential candidate, General Eisenhower, and by the Republican keynoter, General MacArthur.

DULLES DRAFTED PLAN

He went on to show that it was John Foster Dulles, Republican platform draftsman, who had presented the resolution to the United Nations calling for the withdrawal of all forces from Korea at the earliest possible date and that it was Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, another prominent Republican, who had carried out the withdrawal of American troops as deputy chief of staff.

Turning to congressional action, he showed that it was the Republicans who had twice voted down administration measures for military and economic aid to Korea only a few months before the invasion.

Senator Douglas said he would speak to "the American people themselves and not merely to the members of this convention" in refuting the description of the Korean struggle by Republican orators as "Truman's war." He explained that quick action had been needed to prevent the engulfment of South Korea in a few days by the Northern invader. Then he said:

"I have recently come across a statement which describes the moral rightness of the President's action more eloquently than I could ever hope to do:

" 'The decision of President Truman lighted into a flame a lamp of hope throughout Asia that was burning dimly toward extinction. It marked for the Far East the focal and turning point in this area struggle for freedom.

" 'It swept aside in one great momentous stroke all of the hypocrisy and the sophistry which have confused and deluded so many people distant from the actual scene.' "

Senator Douglas cupped his ear and asked the audience who it supposed had made such glowing praise of President Truman. There were loud "boos" and catcalls when he said it was from "none other than General of the Army Douglas MacArthur."

Aside from his reasoned explanation of the policy and conduct of the Korean conflict, Senator Douglas sought to defend the administration from the Republican platform charge that the administration "withdrew our occupation troops in the face of aggressive, pointed-for-action, Communist military strength on its northern border" and that "with foresight, the Korean War would never have happened."

He told how the Joint Chiefs of Staff had advised the President in 1947 that the United States had little strategic interest in maintaining troops in Korea and that in view of the severe shortage of military manpower we could well use the troops elsewhere.

"Now, who do you suppose was Chief of Staff of the Army when this military advice was given" asked Senator Douglas. "It was Dwight D. Eisenhower, standard bearer of those who now charge us with withdrawing our troops and of bringing on the Korean war."

Text of Gov. Dever's Keynote Address to the Democratic Convention

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—Following is the text of the keynote speech for the Democratic National Convention, by Gov. Paul A. Dever of Massachusetts:

Mr. Chairman, delegates, my fellow Americans.

It is with a sense of genuine humility that I assume the task of keynoter to this Democratic Convention.

A little more than a week ago, we listened long and carefully to our Republican friends from this very rostrum.

In vain we waited for a hopeful program for this challenging atomic age. We heard only the voice of the fossil.

I emerged from the experience with one great consolation — the consolation that wise parents, an environment of struggle for survival, and my own choice led me into the Democratic party.

For in the course of their convention, our opponents brought forth in this building, a shopworn declaration, conceived in malice, and dedicated to the propositi-n that all the great achievements of the last 20 years should be swept away.

They opened their proceedings on a note that "the present global struggle can be ended victoriously with lower taxes, fewer soldiers, and no allies."

Our opponents next proceeded to the sordid business of accrediting delegates — of picking one set of shoestring political adventurers over another.

SLAPS GEORGIA GOP

In the name of representative government, they should have repudiated the whole venal pack who neither vote, nor run for office, nor elect representatives. Georgia and Louisiana Republicans are no real party workers. They are only clubs of prospective spoilsmen who meet every four years and send a few of their numbers to the Republican National Convention.

Was the selection among them made on the basis of law and evidence? Morality did not determine the choice. The decisions depended solely on who owned the stables where the competing slates of delegates were kept.

In the meantime, the Republican resolutions committee met in secrecy to concoct a platform. They produced the inevitable weasel-worded jeremiad. It cursed us and all our works. For the most part, it promised all things to all men.

There are very few cases where the Republican platform is specific. Among those few, it promises to return to the money changers of Wall Street the temple of our Federal Reserve system. It it would give comple control of it to those whose selfish manuplations have caused panics and depressions throughout our history. The plaform promises that there will be no repeal or substantial amendment of the Taft-Hartley act. It boasts of the entire Pepublican record in Congress during the last 20 years.

"SPARE RICH, SOAK POOR"

They do not tells us what that record is, but it's on the books, inscribed for all who choose to read it.

What is that record? It has been remarkably consistent for more than a quarter of a century.

On all matters of taxation, the Republicans have invariably voted to spare the rich and soak the poor.

They call that "broadening the tax base," and "spreading the burdens of governmental costs."

On matters affecting price controls and other efforts to stabilize the economy, the Republicans in Congress have uniformly voted to permit profiteers to exploit consumers.

They call that "free enterprise."

On matters of foreign affairs and national defense, cougressional Republicans have voted to strip our defenses; antagonize our allies; and to ignore the poverty, hunger, and distress which are the principal well-beings of Communism.

They call that "helping America first."

BORDER ON ISOLATIONISM

On matters affecting foreign, trade, they have teetered between economics imperialism and isolationist, and voted amendments to the recipropacal trade, act, which would make it unworkble.

They call that "protection of our industry."

Since 1925, for the most part, the Republicans in Congress have opposed any and every program to aid, promote and maintain agriculture.

They call that "rugged individualism."

In the notorious Republican 80th Congress, they foisted on the workers of America the Taft-Harley act. That was was designed to cripple the trade union movement; to discourage collective bargaining; and to revive the company-dominated union, the industrial spy, the employment blacklist and the anti-labor injunction.

The Republicans call that law "to free labor from its chains."

Their senators and representatives in Congress have almost inviarably voted against federal aid to education; against public housing; against health measures; against old-age and survivors' insurance, and unemployment compensation; against public ownership of electric power; and against measures to restrain and control, in the public interest, the financial and economic power of private monopolies.

They call their relentless opposition to this magnificent program a fight against "socialism."

PROMISES AMBIGUOUS

It is only in the light of that record in Congress that the generalities of the Republican platform, the ambiguities of Republican promises, and the platitudinous preachments of Republican orators and candidates, acquire significance.

Finally, having rigged their convention and having adopted without a word of protest that curious set of resolutions they call a platform, they set about the business of selecting a candidate. Then took place the final struggle. Was it a conflict over policies and over philosophies? Was it an effort to replace the Old Guard with a new, inspiring leadership? If such were the case, how can we explain the unanimous and undebated acceptance of a platform which resurrected all the fossils of antediluvian Republicanism?

This was a battle between the stalwarts and the opportunists. An ungrateful crew threw overboard the faithful pilot who had guided them for years and placed at their head one whose knowledge of other waters.

"ROOSEVELT LIEUTENANT"

For, the selfish opportunists placed victory over sincerity, and the spoils of office above the claim of loyalty. They hoped to capitalize on the military exploits of a good general whose fame as a wartime commander was achieved as a lieutenant of Franklin Delano Roosevelt—and whose reputation in the rearmament of Europe was developed as the deputy of Harry S. Truman. He remains a complete novice in the field of civil affairs, he whom the Republicans present as a "new face." Rather they should admit that "the voice is the general's voice, but the hands are the hands of Thomas."

That, my fellow Democrats, is the brief and undistinguished history of the convention of our Republican opponents in this year of the Lord 1952.

With that kind of record, platform and candidate, the logic of events and not the Republicans have forced the great issue of 1952.

Three times in American history, fateful, indeed, has been the decision of the electorate: In 1860, to preserve the union—in 1916, to guide a nation in a war-torn world—in 1932, to redeem the land from financial chaos.

PEACE OT STAKE

A fourth such election confronts us in 1952. The issue is to insure the reign of peace, one thing alone threatens our tranquility. The menace is Communism, both at home and abroad.

To contain it abroad, me must be strong and we must have strong and friendly allies.

To eradicate it at home, we must continue the fight to eliminate the economic injustice, social intolerance, and racial bigotry on which communism breeds.

The containment of that menace abroad and its eradication at home is the only road to peace, the only means of preventing World War III, the only way to meet the challenge of our times.

The Democratic Party alone can meet that challenge. During the next four years, America needs a Democratic president, loyal to the principles and policies, both foreign and domestic, of the new deal of Franklin D. Roosevelt, and the fair deal of Harry S. Truman.

To keep the peace, the President must be equipped not only to contain communism abroad—he must be dedicated to the maintenance and expansion of prosperity at home.

POINTS FOREIGN POLICY

These are but the head and tail of the same coin. A foreign policy conceived in the spirit of a Roosevelt and executed in the spirit of a Truman cannot be tied to a domestic policy molded in the image of a Hoover.

That is the paramount issue of the coming campaign.

The central fact of modern world history has not been the mad dreams of a Kaiser, a Hitler, or a Stalin—the central fact is that the world policy of the United States has restrained and destroyed those mad dreams.

In 1918 as the smoke of battle drifted from the victorious battlefields of Flanders and of France, there stood one towering figure—President Woodrow Wilson.

He brought a new vision to the world—a vision of peace guaranteed by a system of collective security. It was a practical vision, but it could only work if these great United States participated in it.

A little group of wilful men—Republican senators—destroyed that vision. They prevailed in a tragedy of history which records where their puny political triumph led. It led to Pearl Harbor and Anzio, to the Normandy beaches and Okinawa.

SPIRITS AT LOW EBB

The light of freedom flickered low on the morning of Pearl Harbor. Britain stood, magnificent but embattled. Russia was in headlong retreat. The Pacific lay open to the Oriental war lords. But God does not desert his people. For that hour he had raised one of humanity's incomparable heroes—Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

We may view that hour now with vibrant pride. By land, by sea and by air, America fought the good fight, fought it under Africa's blazing sun, in the Aleutians' smothering fog, on the storied streets of Europe, and in the steam jungles of the Orient—and America won its war.

Unfortunately, due to Soviet perfidy and no other reason—a just and lasting peace has yet to be secured. The nations of the world have pledged their honors to the establishment of the United Nations. The dream of collective action of a Wilson and a Roosevelt has come true in a world wearied of war. Alas, however, because of Soviet Russia, victory did not bring tranquility.

For the third time in the 20th Century, a Democratic administration faced the colossal task of stopping in its tracks—the remorseless march of Godless tyranny. This it has done under the foreign policy and determined leadership of President Harry S. Truman.

COMMUNISM CURBED

From the Russian border to the Pyrenees — all Europe lay easy prey to Soviet aggression. But the Truman Doctrine stopped communism at the Greek and Turkish borders. The Marshall Plan revitalized Western Europe economically, restored it militarily and enabled it to help defend tself.

NATO has united the free nations of Western Europe in a common determination to repel further aggression. The Mutual Security Program has strengthened our friends and thereby increased our own safety and lessened the chances of war.

Let this fact of history be ever emblazoned. The President of the United States declared to the Kremlin—thus far you have gone—you shall go no farther!

This has been our foreign policy—and no farther have they gone. They know that when our leader — the man from Independence, Missouri — says something, he means it; and that behind him, ready to back it up, stands the whole mighty power of the United States of America.

If any doubt about our national intentions lingered, that doubt faded when the Communists of North Korea invaded the Republic of South Korea.

MET TEST IN KOREA

Here was the test of the United Nations. Was our commitment a matter of sacred honor? Was our word our bond? Although the Republicans in Congress had delayed military and economic aid to Korea, thereby encouraging the Communists of the north, Republicans as well as Democrats applauded our loyalty to the commitment of the United Nations. France was fighting the Reds in Indo-China. Britain was resisting them in Malaya. The brunt of Korea fell on the United States and the little republic itself whose valiant sons have sustained nearly four-fifths of the total casualties. The goal never has been the military conquest of world communism—it has been the recapture of the invaded republic—and in that objective we have reached the goal.

I know there are some Republicans—and at least one General of the Armies now on a peculiarly inactive status—who disagree.

Most people, however, will prefer the opinion of our chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the real hero of fighting men, General Omar Bradley. "To extend our sphere," he says, "would lead to involvement in the wrong war, in the wrong place, at the wrong time, with the wrong enemy."

The courageous and decisive action taken in Korea may well have halted the outbreak of a third world war. Appeasement or failure to keep our solemn pledge might well have precipitated it.

BOTH PARTIES APPLAUDED

I said that Republicans as well as Democrats applauded the action at the time it was taken.

When they are not talking out of both sides of their mouths in political convention, they still acknowledge that it was the best—the only thing to have done.

Hear the words written by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey—the new "Mr. Republican."

On pages 89 and 90 of his book, entitled "Journey to the Far Pacific"—a book just off the presses—Dewey says, and I quote:

"I regard our intervention in Korea as the single action which saved American influence from disappearing in the Pacific and stopped further communist expansion . . . the day the President announced American defense of Korea I publicly supported his action. I was sure it was right and necessary; I still am . . . I am deeply convinced that, if we had not sent troops to defend Korea, American and United Nations prestige in the whole Pacific would have collapsed. All Southeast Asia would probably have gone Communist by now . . . defense of Korea has given hope to the people of Japan, the Philippines, Free China, Southeast Asia, and Indonesia. It has also given hope in the great cause of "collective security through the United Nations."

GIVE LIE TO SPEECHES

Thus far the words of Tom Dewey. They give the lie to every carping speech made at the Republican convention by orators who would make political capital out of the sweat, blood, toil and tears of American soldiers and their families.

Eternal vigilance is not the only price of freedom. We must be strong as well as vigilant. That means we must be willing to give of the fruits of our bounteous earnings to finance the staggering military costs of preserving liberty.

Like 14 million other civilian soldiers, I know of the wasteful disposition of top-brass military men, and we must restrain those from whom no frugality can be expected.

Regardless of the restraints imposed, a prosperous America must still spend 85 cents of each budget dollar for the security of the nation.

From each budget dollar in 1953, seven-and-one-half cents must pay the interest on the war-incurred debt. Twelve-and-one-half cents will go to aid our trusted allies and friends. Five cents will be used to treat the wounded and care for the veteran. Sixty cents is to maintain the present military establishment—a total of 85 cents. That leaves 15 cents in the budget dollar for all other purposes.

dependent children, and assistance to the disabled and blind! Assume the economically benighted would neglect our natural resources and leave them undeveloped! Suppose these rugged individualists abandoned the farmer to the ravages of uncontrolled free enterprise, and the toiler to the mercies of the sweat shop employer of former days! What if these Republican champions of free enterprise scrapped housing programs, aid to education, the promotion of public health and the construction of highways?

Cruel, ruthless and shortsighted as they might be, they could not cut more than a few cents out of our federal tax dollar when 85 cents of every dollar of governmental expenditures are earmarked for purposes connected with the very security of our nation. Yet, we have heard a voice in the land, saying taxes could be reduced by 40 billions of dollars although federal expenditures for all purposes are only a little more than twice that amount.

I cannot believe this was an attempt wilfully to deceive and mislead the people. But surely it was the voice of one entirely uninformed.

In either event, its possessor, completely untrained in the art of civil government, out of his own mouth proves that he is not qualified to assume the presidency of the United States.

SECURITY PRICED HIGH

Yes, the price of national security comes high, but thank God, we can afford it.

So dynamic and flourishing is our economy that the necessary staggering expenditure is only 20 per cent of the national production. Never in our history has our economy been so strong, so safe, so healthy and so productive as it is today.

It is true, as Herbert Hoover asserted, that the taxes occasioned by this seven-year effort of Harry Truman to preserve human liberty are more than the amount levied in all previous years. But, it is also true, as Mr. Hoover neglected to state, that under President Truman the national income was more, even after the payment of taxes, than the total national income before the payment of taxes, in all the Republican administrations in history.

Since 1932, this nation has experienced a great social revolution. The instrumentality whereby the great social revolution achieves its objectives has been, is, and will be the Democratic Party.

The Democratic Party in 1952 stands squarely and proudly on the record of the last 20 years.

PROUD OF RECORD

The Democratic party confidently looks to the continued support of the American electorate, not because of the faults of our rivals, but because of the merits and accomplishments provable by the Democratic record of years of patriotic service.

To the wage earner, it can say that in terms of purchasing power your income has almost trebled. It proudly asserts that full employment is now a national experience—and we have unemployment compensation to soften the blow for those without work. In 1933, 15,000,000 Americans, without unemployment compensation insurance, faced the future without jobs and without hope.

The wage earners of America will not forget. Gone are the days of the soup kitchens, the apple peddlers, and the eviction of bonus marchers. The wage earners will not refuse the hand of their friend —they will support again the Democratic nominee for president of the United States.

To the farmer, we can boast that prices are up—production is up—income is up.

Gone are the days of 30-cent wheat, 15-cent corn, five-cent cotton, three-cent hogs, and three-cent sugar. In 1932, farm prices were 45 per cent below parity—at the end of 1951, 7 per cent above parity.

FARM OUTPUT DOUBLES

Farm output has gained almost 50 per cent. In terms of dollars and cents, the net income of the average farmer has increased 10 times, and in purchasing power, four times since 1932.

In 1932, the sheriff was at the door of the average American farmhouse. There were 64,000 farm foreclosures in the single year of 1932. Today the sheriff has gone. American farmers have in their holdings an equity of 91 per cent—about 10 times as much as the total farm debt.

Without end, I could recite the benefits of rural electrification, public power, conservation and other aids to agriculture, but they all lead to one irresistible conclusion. The American farmer does not forget. 1948 proved that. In common sense and common appreciation, he will support again the Democratic nominee for president of the United States.

To the leaders of business, we present these challenging facts. In 1932, there were no profits, either before or after taxes for your stockholders. Corporate enterprise operated at a loss of $3,500,000,000. In 1951, American corporate enterprise, after taxes, earned a profit of $18,000,000,000.

In 1932, only $2,500,000,000 went into plant expansion; in 1951, more than $23,000,000,000.

DEPOSITORS PROTECTED

During the years 1930 to 1933, inclusive, there were more than 13,000 bank failures in the United States, all without deposit insurance. During 1947 to 1950 there were only six such failures, with the depositors protected by insurance.

I don't know what American big business will do in this coming election.

But, I do know what it should do. It should, figuratively, each night, get down on its knees and thank Providence above for the enlightened economic philosophy which restored vitality to the economic system which we, Democrats, found in shambles.

I shall not further belabor you with statistics—abundant as they are in their persuasiveness.

I assert the uncontradictable truth that the average American family is much better off. The ownership of our homes might have been saved or made possible by federal home mortgage legislation. Our money in the bank is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Our investments are safer because of the Securities Exchange Commission. The diploma on the wall might have been conferred under the GI Bill of Rights. Our children are better clothed. Our youngsters are better educated. The family health is better protected and the future much brighter than ever before.

HAILED AS DEMOCRACY

This some would call "Creeping Socialism." I hail this as democracy, vindicated in action—and I mean democracy with both a small and a large "D."

Republican orators talk a great deal about corruption. They should! Their party has a long history of first-hand knowledge of the subject.

The Democratic Party pays tribute to the 99.84 per cent of federal employees whose character is above suspicion. With vigor, it has exposed and punished the false few who deserve it.

The Democratic Party, with equal vigor, denounces the unfaithfulness of those disloyal to their public trust and those who corruptly attempt the "steal" of party nominations in national conventions.

To the former, we have been relentless in their prosecution. The latter, we leave to the responsibility of the Republican Party and the judgment of the American electorate.

Republican orators and the Republican platform say very little about civil rights.

The Democratic Party may take legitimate pride in the fact that racial and religious discrimination and prejudice have been enormously reduced in the last 20 years.

FULL CIVIL RIGHTS

My basic philosophy, my experiences in life, and my social background impel without hesitation an undiluted belief in the legal implementation of full civil rights and full economic opportunity for all Americans, regardless of color, creed, age or racial origin. On this issue as in all others the Democratic Party must forever move forward.

Tonight it is my joy—for me a great opportunity—to give testimony to my Democratic faith, and to proclaim the greatness of a great political party.

That party has been in a power for 20 years. It has made promises, and it has kept them.

During these past 20 years the Democratic Party has written a continuing record of high wages for the worker in industry, of high income for the farmer, of corporate profits beyond previous experience and the first post-war period without a depression. It is a record to which every Democrat can point with absolute and undiminished pride.

Today, America stands at the threshold of the atomic age. It should be a golden age. If we are faithful to the New Deal and the Fair Deal, it will be a golden age.

'BIRTHRIGHT SOLD'

As the age of steam developed in America, the Republican Party was in power. True to its philosophy and its heritage, it sold our birthright for a mess of pottage. It gave away our public lands, and it created a network of private monopolies which exploited the people of America.

When the electric age dawned, the Republicans again were in power.

All over the nation, electric power was treated as the privilege of private monopoly and the public interest was ignored.

Thus, under Harding, the Ohio gang tried to auction off Muscle Shoals to a plunderbund. Under Hoover, they placed the newly developed marvels of radio in the hands of private monopolists subject to little, if any, restraint.

Fortunately for the American people, their votes in 1932 made certain that the Valley of the Tennessee, the Columbia and other great rivers would be developed in the public interest. Twenty years of Democratic administration have prevented the private monopolists from further grabbing the resources of the people.

The Republicans not only by philosophy and by heritage, but by their recent record in Congress are dedicated to releasing the new power of atomic energy to private monopoly.

ATOMIC ENERGY IMPORTANT

Atomic energy, which up to now has been an engine of war, should be the handmaid of undreamed-of productivity; the means of promoting peace and providing indescribable prosperity; and the instrument for wiping out the squalor and suffering in which pagan communism does flourish.

With our other resources, it must serve the purposes of raising up the sick and afflicted; or providing better educational advantages to the young; assuring dignified comfort to the elderly; lightening the burdens of the toiler on the farm; in the factory, at the office, and of the home, and increasing the cultural and recreational opportunities for all Americans.

To whom do the American people wish to entrust these fateful days at the dawn of a new age?

To the Hamiltonians of today—the Republicans—who serve primarily the rich in the belief that their prosperity will seep through to those below?

Or to the Jeffersonians and Jacksonians — the Democrats who believe that the well-being of the many is the base upon which our universal prosperity must rest?

I could leave you with that question to which all of you so well know the answer.

But, before concluding, I want to share with you a simple yet beautiful affirmation of our Democratic faith which another solemn moment of our history brought from one of America's most gifted pens.

My mind fleets back to Flag Day, June 14, 1942. America had joined forces with Britain—then alone—yet in her finest hour. The day of infamy had been followed by repeated defeats and staggering setbacks.

INSPIRED POETIC PRAYER

The heavens were leadened by clouds of black despair—the great republic of the West was girding for the fray—yet time was on the side of the enemy.

The gallant warrior, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, inspired Stephen Vincent Benet to set to poetry our nation's aspiration in that dark hour. Let us tonight adopt it as our prayer. From our lips, let us storm the bastions of our destiny beyond the stars. Let us ask divine assistance in its fulfillment.

And may I quote:

"Grant us a common faith that man
Shall know bread and peace,
That he shall know justice and
Righteousness, and freedom and security,
And equal opportunity and an equal chance
To do his best,
Not only in our land but throughout
The world,
And in this faith, let us march toward
The clean world our hands can make."

My fellow delegates:

Let them form their battalions captained by the lords of the press, the oil tycoons of Houston, and the money changers of Wall Street. Let them form their forces of malcontents—the poor made wealthy who bemoan the burden of free men in a challenged world.

Let them ride to battle in their motors, forgetful of the day when there was no chicken and there was no pot.

Let us form our army of the thinking men and mindful women, the honest toiler, the fruitful tiller rejoicing in an America bountiful in its opportunities—faithful in its duties.

We have clashed before. We shall fight them in the cities and fight them in the towns. We shall fight in the counties and fight in the precincts.

We shall never surrender. Our cause is just.

We have vanquished them before—we shall vanquish them again.

We have triumphed before.

Not 82 But 75 MPH, Yet Boy's Joy Is Brief

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., July 21 — (INS) — A 17-year-old Miami Beach boy breathed a sigh of relief today when a motorcycle cop said his speedometer was not working properly when he clocked the lad at 82 miles an hour.

But the youth's happiness was short-lived.

Judge Albert Saperstein and the officer, Jack Sheppard, agreed that 75 miles an hour would be a fair estimate of the speed driven by Charles Ashman.

Young Ashman was fined $30.

DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGNERS HOLD SHIRT-SLEEVE CONFERENCE TO AVERT INTRA-PARTY ROW

Seated (L. to R.): Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia; Sen. Blair Moody of Michigan; Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. of New York; Sen. Edwin Johnson of Colorado and Sen. Walter George of Georgia. Standing: Jake Arvey of Chicago; Carl V. Rice of Kansas; Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh; Sen. Earle Clements of Kentucky and Former Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois would support the convention's nominee.

Russell Balks at 'Loyalty Pledge' Solution

MOODY PEACEMAKER

Sen. Blair Moody of Michigan presided at a meeting last night of candidates' representatives in an effort to get an agreement that would prevent a flaming floor fight.

He announced afterward that there was a general agreement to ask the convention to adopt new rules last night. It would tie the hands of the individual delegates and prevent them from promoting possible substitute candidates on the Democratic ballots in their states.

But it soon became clear that there had not been iron-clad, unanimous agreement.

Sen. Walter George, one of two representatives of Sen. Russell at the meeting, rumbled to reporters that he thought the rule would "do more harm than good."

Moody said the other Russell representative, Sen. Edwin Johnson of Colorado, raised no objection.

But then Russell issued his statement.

The proposed rule would not go quite as far as the loyalty pledge the Harriman-Kefauver combination had at first proposed.

It would not bind Democrats other than the delegates in Southern states to take no action to keep the regular nominees off the ballots. Neither would it keep the delegates themselves from speaking against and voting against the regular nominees.

It merely would pledge them, in their individual capacities as delegates, to take no steps to thwart the will of the National Convention.

Another point brought up at tonight's meeting was the question whether delegates from Texas and Mississippi involved in contests should be permitted to participate in the convention until their right to seats had finally been settled by the convention.

The party's National Committee had voted to seat anti-Truman delegates from these two states. Pro-Truman delegates plan to carry the contest to the convention.

The conferees at last night's session agreed to bar the anti-administration Texas and Louisiana delegates from voting at the convention until their status is decided finally.

Before Russell issued his statement, Moody had expressed confidence the Georgian would not fight the proposed new rule.

The exact wording of the rule was not immediately available.

George, who came out of the meeting room shortly before Moody, told newsmen he could not say whether any agreement had been reached but then he burst out:

"I have not agreed to anything. I think it is wholly a mistake to undertake to bind the delegates here."

Moody insisted that there was no effort at all to write a rule that would exact a personal loyalty pledge from any individual delegate.

SHIVERS' POSITION

Moody said that Sen. Earle Clements of Kentucky, representing Vice President Barkley, had expressed the belief that Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas would make no attempt to keep the convention's candidates off the ballot in his state.

Shivers heads an anti-administration delegation from Texas which has been seated temporarily by the National Committee pending an inquiry into its loyalty to the 1952 ticket.

The Mississippi delegation has been given similar temporary seats in the convention.

Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who represented Averell Harriman at the conference, said that the proposed rule included the principles of the loyalty pledge which has been pushed by the supporters of Harriman and Sen. Estes Kefauver.

KERR SUPPORTER

Carl V. Rice, Kansas national committeeman who represented Sen. Robert S. Kerr at the meeting, said that many different versions of the rules were proposed and that the one agreed upon was a compromise.

Moody said there had been no disagreement whatsoever on the other decision taken at the conference — that the disputed Texas and Mississippi slate not vote in the convention until their status has been decided by the Credentials Committee.

The two disputed delegations themselves were wholly in accord with this, he said.

The 70 votes of the anti-administration delegations from Texas and Mississippi, if they are finally seated, are expected to go to Sen. Russell for the presidential nomination.

Russell Sees Plot To Split Democrats

trying to capture the Democratic Party now are the same ones who tried to nominate Henry Wallace in 1944 and who tried to give the Democratic nomination in 1948 to the present Republican Party standard bearer. The real Democrats might ask this group if it isn't trying to help elect the Republican nominee this year."

Senator Russell and his sister, Mrs. J. K. Stacey of Washington, held a reception for friends Monday afternoon at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

NEW MEXICO VISIT

Eight of the 12 delegates from New Mexico visited Russell.

Rep. John Dempsey, who headed the visitors, pledged his support to Russell and predicted the Georgian will receive New Mexico's 12 votes after the first ballot. He said Russell has much support in the delegation but that Senator Kerr of Oklahoma has more delegates at present.

"We had a very good conference," said the congressman. "It will be very productive. Dick Russell impressed our delegation as he impresses others. While other candidates can say what they are going to do, Russell can point to his record and show what he has done."

"NO PLEDGE"

Russell had breakfast with the North Dakota delegation and talked with delegations from Vermont and Michigan.

"I did not ask them to take any loyalty pledge to support me," Russell smiled, "but they talked favorably and I expect some of them to vote for me on the first ballot."

With more favorite-son candidates cropping up, however, Russell said the convention is becoming more confused rather than settling down. He reiterated that he was absolutely not interested in taking the vice-presidential nomination.

The candidate received a contribution of $700 from friends in Madison County, Ga. It was presented by state Rep. Howard Tamplin.

Steel Union Voids Gains To Stand by Closed Shop

give the steel workers the same type of union shop they had accorded to coal miners, railroad workers, seamen and others employed by steel subsidiaries.

INCREASED POWER

The second was the insistence of U. S. Steel on contract changes that would give management increased power over wage rates and work crews.

The third point was a union demand that wages in the iron ore mines, which are now 12 to 14 cents an hour below those prevailing in steel mills, be brought up to the steel level.

Stephens pushed his green tie into his white shirt and told the committee he would not say anything that would add to the heat in the sweltering meeting room. He got his first applause when he said that any comfort Josef Stalin might derive from the shutdown of the steel mills would be lessened by the knowledge that in America free men were still able to argue out their differences, face to face, and try to bring their views into accord.

OFFER IS READ

He read for the first time publicly the offer of the companies yesterday. This called for a wage increase of 16 cents an hour, retroactive to March 16, and "fringe" benefits that would amount to 5.4 cents an hour more.

The only point that had blocked acceptance of this formula yesterday was the industry's refusal to drop from the new contract the 15-day "escape" period customarily allowed workers already in the union to get out if they desired to withdraw.

VOLUNTEERS BEST

Moreell, who was an admiral in the Navy before he became head of Jones & Laughlin, said his experience as wartime chief of the Seabees had convinced him that it was better to rely on volunteers than on people who had to enroll in an organization because they were forced to do so.

He told the unionists that he had so much confidence in the worth and stability of their organization that it "mystified" him to find the union putting so much stress on forcing workers to join, instead of depending on their signing up voluntarily.

Larkins, a red-faced, white-haired man with a cheerful grin, accepted the cheers that greeted his introduction as proof that he had been right in telling Murray that he had won a "hell of a victory" in the last company offer.

He said both sides had made "many, many concessions."

The policy committee had voted to toss out all the compromise understandings before the industrialists spoke, but Murray gave the delegates a chance to change their minds after they had heard the company presentations. When he asked whether they wanted to alter the resolution calling for the full Wage Board proposals, the unionists shouted back: "No—hell, no."

Duce Letters Tell Plan to Delay War

ROME, July 21 (AP)—Mussolini told Hitler in 1939 he didn't want Italy to go to war until 1942, secret letters made public today by the Italian Foreign Office revealed.

The Italian dictator wanted time to hold a world's fair in Rome in 1942—to advertise the first 20 years of fascism and "bring in valuable revenue" — and said he needed first to build up his army and equipment, complete six battleships then under construction and to transfer war industries from the north to the south, the documents revealed.

Keynoter Dever Charges GOP Aims To Erase 20-Year Gains

said that the Republicans "brought forth in this building a shopworn declaration, conceived in malice, and dedicated to the proposition that all the great achievements of the last 20 years should be swept away."

The Democrats, he continued, found the nation's economic system "in shambles" when they came to power 20 years ago. In that 20 years, he said, the soundness of the economy has been restored and "the uncontradictable truth (is) that the average American family is much better off."

Dever added:

"This, some would call 'creeping socialism.' I hail this as democracy, vindicated in action—and I mean democracy with both a small and a large 'D.'

"Tonight it is my joy—for me a great opportunity to give testimony to my Democratic faith, and to proclaim the greatness of a great political party.

"During these past 20 years the Democratic party has written a continuing record of high wages for the worker in industry, of high income for the farmer, of corporate profits beyond previous experience and the first postwar years without a depression. It is a record to which every Democrat can point with absolute and undiminished pride."

The Republicans, on the other hand, produced as their campaign platform "the inevitable weasel-worded jeremiad," Dever said. He declared that the only specific things in it are a pledge to retain the Taft-Hartley Act and a promise "to return to the money changers of Wall Street the temple of our Federal Reserve System."

Stevenson Nomination Fever Rises

Choice Expected On 2d Ballot

no longer believed he had a chance, and those supporting Senator Kerr and certain large corporate interests devoted to General Eisenhower, were behind his boom.

"The Vice-President said that he had nothing to do with this, if it were true, and we told him we believed that. We did not think he had been made a party to it. But we did not have any doubt but what this group wanted to nominate him and thereby retain control of the party, but at the same time would not make any real effort of support in the election. We further told him that since Mr. Truman had so emphasized that he, the President, was too old at 68 for another four years, it didn't make too much sense to nominate a man 74 even though we knew Mr. Truman's delegate would have voted for Barkley, the President being bound to support his partner in office."

Barkley, in his withdrawal statement issued at 11:45, said that the position of labor was the primary cause of his leaving the contest for the nomination. And he added new details elaborating on his own position.

10-MINUTE ACCLAIM

Shortly after noon Governor Stevenson's speech of welcome brought him a ten-minute unsponsored, unrehearsed ovation. It was a fine address, too, and the only one to date, including the Republican Conventior, lacking in the usual cliches.

Sen. Paul Douglas came after him with a thorough campaign document on Korea. He nailed it down, bringing in the full support given by Generals MacArthur, Wedemeyer and Eisenhower.

When Douglas had concluded his major address he was called upon to present an American veteran. He called to the stand Sgt. John A. Pittman of Greenwood, Miss.

Douglas began telling the sergeant's story. He had been in Korea and was leading a patrol on a volunteer mission of great danger, when a grenade was thrown. The sergeant flung his body across it and saved others from death and injury. When he was at last restored to consciousness, his first words were to ask about his companions.

TEARS IN EYES

When Douglas reached this point, tears started to his eyes and he flung his own injured arm, half paralyzed from a Japanese machine gun burst in an assault on a Pacific island, about the shoulders of the young man. It was a sight which touched many deeply. Many of us also had tears in our eyes as we saw the tall, gray-haired senator, himself wounded in combat, standing with his wasted, half-paralyzed arm about the slight, shy young man beside him.

Sergeant Pittman talked of Korea. He knew nothing, he said, of foreign policy or politics, but the men in Korea were willing to fight, and fought well, because they believed in the fight.

TYPICALLY AMERICAN

His wife was called upon to stand, and she did, to great cheers. It was a heart-warming picture, and a typically American one It was good, too, for a political convention, set to nominate men who may lead the nation, to see and hear both Pittman and Douglas—the gray senator of great position and influence, wounded in battle, and Pittman, the shy young man from Mississippi. Their bodies had been offered as shields for their country, and both were testifying for it.

The afternoon was filled with rumors. I went off on one hunt for a group which had met to plan Governor Stevenson's nomination. We arrived 15 minutes too late, but there was no doubt but what he would be nominated and, unless the opposition unites to stop him, he will be drafted and nominated. So sure were the experts they began to talk of the vice-president, as if the other were no longer in doubt.

And so it seemed. Stevenson could lose it only by an outright refusal.

Bosses Criticize High School Grads

NEW YORK—(AP)—The trouble with recent high school graduates employed by its member firms, says the Commerce and Industry Association of New York, is that their spelling is bad, their handwriting illegible, their arithmetic unreliable and they expect too much pay and too rapid advancement.

The survey was based on questionnaires filled in by executives of 165 firms about the aptitudes and job qualifications of 33,234 employes hired since 1947 with high school educations.

VICTIMS — TEHACHAPI, Calif., July 21—H. L. Rockwell and his wife Alice, victims of Monday's severe earthquake, rest on lawn of Tehachapi hospital after treatment.

is used jointly by S.P. and the Santa Fe.

Several highways in addition to the ridge route were either badly damaged or closed entirely by earth slides and buckling pavement.

An oil refinery was set afire, and still blazed hours later.

Although the damage here was by far the most severe, it spread out over a radius of nearly 100 miles. Bakersfield, a city of 35,000, was hard hit although no one was killed. So were such other Kern County communities as Taft and Maricopa.

Even over the mountains in Los Angeles, and up the San Joaquin Valley to Fresno, the damage toll mounted and was sure to hit into the millions of dollars.

AREA STILL ROCKS

Dr. Hugo Benioff of California Institute of Technology, told reporters that about one time in 20 in a quake of such magnitude, another earthquake follows. Meanwhile, the area continued to rock periodically from what seismologists call settling after-shocks.

The estimate of possible movement along the fault came from another scientist, Dr. Charles F. Richter of Caltech, as he headed into the area for a personal inspection. Faults are cracks in the earth's surface, sometimes extending for miles. Scientists say quakes are caused by lateral movement along the fault after the earth builds up pressure stresses.

TOLL MOUNTS

The list of injured climbed steadily, from points within a radius of 40 miles of the quake's center. It was California's most severe—but not most disastrous—quake since the San Francisco shock of 1906. Only the fact that it hit in this sparsely-settled mountain country, seismologists agreed, kept the death and damage toll from being much worse.

Millions of Californians, from San Francisco to the Mexican border were awakened as the first shock hit at 4:52 a. m. PDT (6:52 a. m. Atlanta time).

San Francisco escaped damage but damage in Los Angeles was extensive although minor in nature.

It was more than an hour later before the first word of the damage filtered out from Tehachapi.

The list of dead as announced by Deputy Coroner Nolan Clay:

DEAD LISTED

Mrs. Blanche Quintana, 36, of Silver City, N. M., and four children, Nicola, 16, Gloria, 13, Joe, 11, and Bobby, 5. They arrived only yesterday and rented an adobe house almost in the business district.

Marianne, 12, Linda, 9, and Mary Martin, 8, daughters of Louis Martin, 47, who operates the town's furniture store. The family lived at the store.

Marilyn Taylor, 13, friend of the Martin girls, who was spending the night with them.

ROOF CAVES IN

Florence Ann Fillmore, 16, was killed when a roof caved in at the Ousley ranch, outside of town, where she lived.

Walter Nolen, 50, of Bakersfield, a guest at the Juanita Hotel.

Martin and three other children, Henrietta, 18, Lois, 16, and John, 5, were among about 20 injured here. Mrs. Laberta Martin, 37, and son Louis Jr., were unhurt. "God just took the middle right out of my family and left me the two eldest and the two youngest," sobbed Mrs. Martin.

The town's business section looked like a tornado had hit it. Beds hung over the floor edges of two hotels from which the fronts had fallen out. A one-story business building fell completely into its basement — leaving just a hole in the ground with bricks in it.

In Bakersfield, Kern County seat, dozens were treated for shock and minor injuries. Two were hurt at Grapevine, a resort on the Ridge Route, main highway between Los Angeles and Bakersfield, where damage was heavy.

In Taft, near Bakersfield, one house fell in, slightly injuring two men and several downtown buildings were damaged. In Maricopa, the front wall of the Hotel Maricopa fell in, but there were no injuries.

Address by Stevenson Sends His Stock Soaring

gates more like a keynote speech or a nominating speech or acceptance speech, the Illinois governor defended his party's record over the past 20 years. But he warned colleagues not to deny past failures or to promise cheap and easy solutions for the future.

"Where we have erred, let there be no denial," he said. "Where we have wronged the public trust, let there be no excuses. Self-criticism is the secret weapon of democracy and candor and confession are good for the political soul."

This was applauded enthusiastically by delegates gathered in the air-conditioned Convention Hall for their opening session and he even won applause when he promised them nothing but endless sacrifices in the days ahead.

"This is not the time," he said, commenting on the recent Republican nominating convention, "for superficial solutions and endless elocution, for frantic boast and foolish word. For words are not deeds and there are no cheap and painless solutions to war, hunger, ignorance, fear and the new imperialism of the Soviet Union."

He said:

"Intemperate criticism is not a policy for the nation. Denunciation is not a program for our salvation, words calculated to catch everyone may catch no one."

DULLNESS SOUGHT

For days Stevenson and aides had been saying privately that the governor's welcoming speech would be purposely dull so as to discourage enthusiastic reaction in this hall. But when the speech turned out to be an eloquent document, filled with shining phrases, quick wit and sarcastic shafts at the Republicans it was accepted by many delegates not as a document calculated to depress enthusiasm but to arouse it.

He spoke of the last generation passing through "a storm of spears."

He spoke of the world of today "in a torment of transition" trying to pass "from an age that has died to an age struggling to be born."

He referred to communism as "the barbarian at the gate."

He quoted St. Francis:

"Where there is patience and humility there is neither anger nor worry."

And he added:

"What America needs and the world wants is not bombast, abuse and double talk, but a sober message of firm faith and confidence."

"NO TURNING BACK"

He quoted Justice Holmes (in a passage which some observers applied to the governor himself):

"There is no turning back. As Justice Holmes said, 'We must sail sometimes with the wind, sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift or lie at anchor'."

To a hall full of politicians and reporters who have tried to write speeches and know how hard it is to produce such language, all this did not sound like a man who was trying to be a good but unimpressive host.

Moreover, Governor Stevenson picked up and emphasized precisely the theme that the White House has been advocating as the most effective political theme of this campaign: that the Democratic program is more important than the Democratic candidate.

"What counts now," he said, "is not just what we are against but what are are for. Who leads us is less important than what leads us—what convictions, what courage, what faith—win or lose. A man doesn't have a century or a civilization but a militant party welded to a principile can."

Finally he delighted his partisan audience of delegates with this comment on the recent Republican convention:

"For almost a week, pompous phrases marched over this landscape in search of an idea, and the olny idea that they (the Republicans) found was that the last two past great decades of progress in peace, victory in war, and bold leadership in this anxious hour were the misbegotten spawn of bungling, corruption, socialism, mismanagement, waste and worse.

"They captured, tied and dragged that ragged idea in here and they furiously beat it to death for a solid week.

"After listening to our misdeeds awhile I was surprised next morning when the mail was delivered on time."

Even before Stevenson put on this performance this morning, his name was the most prominent in the convention.

PENNSYLVANIA CAUCUS

Pennsylvania last night voted informally to give him more than half its delegates and by the time he reached the podium this morning the delegates were in a demonstrating mood. They wouldn't let him speak a full five minutes.

"We want Stevenson," yelled the galleries.

Stevenson stood at the podium in a blue suit and blue and white-donkey-figured tie smiling and gesturing thumbs down to the demonstrators, particularly those in his own delegation, but they paid no attention.

QUIET ATTAINED

When he finally got things about as quiet as they ever get in this hall, which isn't very quiet, he said: "I thought I came here to greet you and not for you to greet me."

When he finished his address he was warmly applauded but he walked immediately from the stage. A quick check of delegation heads in the big states indicated that Stevenson definitely made progress.

This sentiment was summed up by Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina national committeeman and biographer of President Truman who came here uncommitted but said after the welcoming speech that he was now for Stevenson.

"I know he'll run," Daniels said. "He's running right now. The convention is running him."

Leaf Mart Opens With Prices Up

High as $8 Paid On Ga. Floors

Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco sales began Monday with price increases by grades as much as $8 a hundred above the 1951 opening.

Average quality, however, appeared to be slightly lower and the overall price average may not have been far from last year's beginning figure of $54.11. The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimated the average at between $50 and $54, although individual reports from some markets were higher.

The department listed gains by grades at $1 to $8. Most increases were $1 to $3.

The goal of 19 Georgia and three Florida markets was a dollar outpouring equalling the 1951 first-day total of nearly 5 million for more than 9 million pounds. An unofficial survey indicated the objective may have been reached or even exceeded.

Vidalia, the first market to report final figures, listed 575,000 pounds sold for $327,750, or an average of $57. This was a pickup of $51,772 from last year's first-day sales of 515,428 pounds at $53.54 average.

An $8 a hundred jump from last year's opening was registered at Metter where 300,000 pounds sold at an average of $55.

Price gains indicated in reports of a few early morning sales ranged from nearly $10 a hundred at Fitzgerald to a fractional figure at Moultrie. Other early margins of advance included $8 at Claxton, $7 at Pelham, $2 at Hazlehurst and $4.25 at Statesboro.

Suit Asks Transit Co. For $50,000

A 74-year-old woman Monday sued the Atlanta Transit Company for $50,000, charging that negligence of a company driver resulted in an accident and that she received permanent injuries.

At the same time, her husband filed suit seeking $25,000 for medical expenses.

Mrs. J. W. Hill of 1324 N. Highland Ave., N. E., alleged in a petition filed in Fulton Superior Court that she was thrown from her feet soon after entering a bus at N. Highland Ave. and Morningside Dr. on April 30. She claimed she struck her head on a steel support and received permanent back injuries and a severe scalp wound.

According to the petition, "without warning or notice, the driver began to operate the trolley at a rapid rate of speed and to swerve same on the road, causing plaintiff to fall and strike her head. . . ."

The petition was filed by the law firm of Sheats and Maddox.

17 Voolunteer Doctors

The Fulton County Medical Society Monday offered services of 17 volunteer physicians to examine applicants for the new permanently disabled persons program.

The society will charge $5 per examination, Grady Hospital superintendent Frank Wilson said. Wilson previously told Wellborn Ellis, head of the Fulton County Welfare Board, that Grady doctors could not perform the exams because the work would overtax the staff. He said the hospital would have had to charge $5 for each examination.

Wilson said Monday that hospital authorities will not aid in the exams unless the work gets too heavy for the volunteers to handle.

School Opening

Fulton school superintendent Paul West Monday announced that the county's 46 schools will officially open Sept 8. West said he anticipates an enrollment of over 19,000 in the 35 white and 11 Negro schools. Registration will be Sept. 4 and 5 for elementary students and Sept. 2 through Sept. 5 for high schools.

"3-HOUR BEATING"

Mrs. Charles Ross

Floyd Boy, 12, Kills Father; Says Mother Beaten 3 Hours

ROME, Ga., July 21—(AP)—A 12-year-old boy who said he shot down his father to end a three-hour beating of his mother was released today.

The boy, Charles Allen Ross, was placed in the custody of his badly battered mother while juvenile authorities studied the case.

Young Ross killed his father, Charles R. Ross, 48, with a single shot from a .22-caliber rifle.

The boy told police that his father started beating his mother with a three-foot, half inch thick tree limb at 10:30 p. m. Sunday and continued the drubbing until 1:30 a. m. Monday.

Rome Police Chief M. Smith Horton quoted the youngster as saying, "I stood it as long as I could and then I shot him."

FAMILY FLED

Mrs. Ross, young Charles and two other children fled to a neighbor's immediately after the boy fired. They apparently were unaware that Ross had been injured fatally, officials said.

Chief Horton said that Mrs. Ross called police and that City Recorder M. W. Hicks then swore out a wife-beating warrant against Ross.

When police went to serve the warrant about 45 minutes after Mrs. Ross called, they found Ross, a former cafe operator, dead and still clutching a splintered stick.

Mrs. Ross subsequently was treated at a Rome hospital for severe bruises and lacerations, some of which she said were caused by Ross' heavy, homemade ring.

SAID HUSBAND DRUNK

The 40-year-old mother of three living children said that at the time of the beating, which she claimed was but one of many, her husband had been drinking heavily.

Mrs. Ross gained a measure of local fame last August when she gave birth to triplets. The triplets lived but one day.

Floyd County Coroner J. W. Davis said he "probably would not call an inquest."

Ross will be buried at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Oldsters Get $5 Boost In September Checks

By ANNE GOWEN

Approximately 70,000 Georgians receiving federal old age and survivors insurance payments will find an extra $5 or more added to their checks for the month of September.

At the same time, $3 to $5 will be added to monthly individual allotments from state-administered public assistance programs affecting 145,375 Georgians, if the Federal Security Administration approves a plan submitted by the State Public Welfare Department last week.

Both increases, which will show up on checks issued Oct. 1 and each month thereafter, result directly from amendments signed into the Social Security law by President Truman last week.

The raises will be automatic and no one already on the old age and survivors insurance rolls need apply to local Social Security offices, Richard H. Lyle, regional director of FSA, said Monday.

Another provision boosts from $50 to $75 the amount a beneficiary may earn and still receive monthly benefits. Additional persons may be eligible under this provision and should contact Social Security authorities, Lyle said.

Another amendment extends Social Security wage credits of $160 for active military or naval service between July 24, 1947, and Jan. 1, 1954. According to Lyle, this offers men now in service the same consideration given those who served in World War II and provides continuity of employment in Social Security records.

Expansion of the state public assistance program was made possible by legislation that will increase federal aid by an estimated $8,492,000 and bring the federal share of the joint $50,891,000 state-administered program to $38,034,000.

$23 FOR FOOD

According to Alan Kemper, State Public Welfare Department director, the additional federal grant will be passed on to individuals in increased food allowances.

Under the plan FSA is expected to provide next week, food allowances for single persons receiving aid for old age, blindness or permanent disability will be increased by $5, bringing the maximum allotment for food to $23 a person. For two or more persons in the same family the increase would be $3.

Aid to dependent children will be increased $3 for each child. The maximum then would be $30 for the first child and $21 for the caretaker or each additional child.

Total state and federal public welfare payments in Georgia will be increased from $67,131,000 to $78,383,000 under the new law.

GBI Seeks Wife Stolen In Own Car

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation Monday joined the statewide search for a 17-year-old expectant mother and her alleged kidnaper.

A kidnaping warrant against Jim Hitley, 25, of Atlanta and Moline, Ill., was sworn out by John Bowling, 25, also of Moline, who told College Park police Hitley drove off with his pregnant wife while he went into a cafe to buy some cigarettes. He said his wife was asleep on the back seat of the car.

Bowling told officers he and his wife had driven to College Park from Moline and arrived early Saturday. He said neither he nor his wife knew Hitley prior to the trip.

The Bowlings were headed for East Point where they were to visit Mrs. H. D. Peterson at 604 Chapman Ave. Bowling said Hitley was supposed to turn the car around while he was in the College Park cafe — but when Bowling came out, he said, the car was gone.

The Most Powerful Gasoline Your Car Can Use!

Get Activated!

TODAY'S more powerful engines require a highly complex gasoline to deliver their full power. There can be as many as 1500 different chemical compounds in a gallon of gasoline.

To select the best of these chemicals, and to arrange them properly to fulfill the needs of your car calls for the last word in refinery equipment and scientific skill.

It is Shell's manufacturing policy to make "The most powerful gasoline your car can use." Shell activates gasoline by splitting and rearranging petroleum molecules.

The result—Shell Premium—the most powerful gasoline your car can use. See the Shell Dealer in your neighborhood.

John Gunther: The Eisenhower Story

Ike Sees Prompt Allied Build-Up As Best Insurance Against War

(This is the last of a series of articles on the life of Dwight Eisenhower by the famous biographer and author of "Inside Europe," "Inside U. S. A." and other books.)

What SHAPE hopes for is time—first, time to generate the necessary spirit, create political unity, and aboveall establish confidence; second, time to build up and train the requisite force and organize an instantly mobilizable reserve. Meanwhile, the main emphasis is to make any aggression by the Russians intolerably expensive.

Probably the peak of Western power will not be reached for another year at least. Why should the Russians wait that long? Why should they bequeath us that much time?

Eisenhower said recently, "No military high command will recommend that its nation embark on war unless it can give reasonable assurance of probability that it can (a) win; (b) rebuild faster than its adversary after the war is over."

His thinking proceeds more or less as follows: An important factor that might cause Russians to make war is recognition that their own system is inferior. Their slaves will, in time, get an inkling of what freedom means. So, if they think their game is up in the long run, they may decide to fight now in order to save what they have.

COUNTERFACTORS

But against this theory are several important counterfactors. The Russians are masters of what might be called "attack on a broad front"—attack by propaganda, by espionage, by political infiltration, by diplomatic pressure on small powers, by economic threats.

To proceed: the 14 men in the Politburo are ruthlessy realistic. They want (a) success for Russia; (b) to keep their own jobs. They must know a general war would be a crazy risk.

A war might, of course, be caused by accident. This, in the view of some of the SHAPE staff, is the gravest of present dangers. Eisenhower himself has talked of the possibility of an "insane" attack. An accident probably would derive in the first instance from Russian ignorance.

The Soviets might calculate that we would not resist some new, insidious, aggressive move. They might, out of misunderstanding of American temperament, push us too far, thinking we would not retaliate. Then, if we did, both sides might have committed themselves so far as to make overt war inevitable.

The fact remains: formal attack by Russia (assuming for the sake of argument that Moscow wants a war) is not considered an imminent probability, for the reason that the Russians know, if they start a war, they will almost certainly lose it.

EXPANDING POTENTIAL

Several factors enter into this, in addition to SHAPE and the overwhelming preponderance of our expanding industrial potential:

1. We have a bigger stockpile of atomic bombs by far.

2. We are ringing Russia with a skein of air bases from which its industrial centers could be bombed unmercifully.

3. We have a superb geographical position, absolute command of the seas, loyal allies, superiority in technical skills, educated manpower, and unlimited morale and democratic will to win.

4 Industrially Russia is, most experts believe, not in good shape to fight an extended war.

5. The Russians had 14,000,000 casualties in World War II (according to Russian figures). Their people can, of course, be made to fight. Any dictatorship can make its people fight—up to a point.

6. There are, happily for us, severe doubts as to the sustained loyalty of the satellites.

7. Stalin thinks that if he plays safe and avoids open conflict, the German problem will eventually settle itself to Russian advantage.

8. Above all, a general war simply does not suit the present Russian purpose.

WAR NOT INEVITABLE

None of the above should give anybody too much comfort. War is not inevitable; but to be careless would be to make it so.

Most people around SHAPE had hoped that when Eisenhower returned to the United States, Gruenther would succeed him. However, the White House joined the North Atlantic Treaty Council in the appointment of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway as Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers in Europe to succeed Eisenhower. General Gruenther, at the request of General Ridgway, remains as his Chief of Staff.

The presidency was one subject on which the fluent Eisenhower seldom spoke, except to those really intimate while at SHAPE. His aim had been to give SHAPE everything he had. Many Europeans felt the general was so vital not merely as a leader but as a symbol that when he left, a serious letdown might come in the whole establishment.

I asked one prominent French politician if he would prefer to have Eisenhower at SHAPE or in the White House. The answer was logical: "In the White House, of course, because it is the White House that gives SHAPE orders. If he can be president, he must be."

NOT AN ISOLATIONIST

In order to explore what kind of president Eisenhower would make we must outline his basic beliefs. He is an obvious idealist, a markedly decent human being with a great deal of common sense who likes to believe in the essential decency and common sense of other human beings. He believes in peace above all, in unity of effort by the Western Allies, and in a world order secured by American strength.

He is ardently anti-isolationist. "No intelligent man," he declared once, "can be an isolationist." And he is a distinct conservative.

Largely through the influence of his close friend and admirer, Anna Rosenberg, he made a famous address to the CIO convention at Atlantic City in 1946. The brass hats in the Pentagon fought this appearance bitterly, but Eisenhower went through with it.

He paid a handsome tribute to the job labor did in the war—"American labor rightly shares in the laurels won by American troops on the battlefield"—and talked eloquently about the virtues of the free enterprise system.

He said, "Enslaved labor, regimented farmers, and chained management proved to be no match . . . for free labor, free agriculture, and free management." The speech contained little that was controversial and it was enthusiastically received.

NOT AGAINST LABOR

Labor has cooled on him since that date, though he has never taken an antilabor stand. But it is generally believed he is out of sympathy with much that labor advocates, and he dislikes the extreme prolabor orientation brought about by the Truman government. Eisenhower's remarks on social security have on other occasions got him into mild trouble. In a speech at the Waldorf-Astoria he mentioned that to much emphasis was being placed in the country on personal security at the expense of individual liberty.

On the other side of the fence Eisenhower has on several occasions given big business a jolt. Speaking at Columbia in 1948 he talked about the "danger" that may arise from "too great a concentration of finance." He hates business "greed."

On civil liberties Eisenhower's record is good. He came out firmly in defense of Dr. Philip Jessup when Jessup first faced attack for alleged "disloyalty." And he has taken a strong stand against loyalty oaths at universities.

BELIEVES IN PEACE

Eisenhower told me in Washington some years ago he believed in "driving straight down the middle of the road." He exclaimed, "If only a man can have courage enough to take the leadership of the middle!" But he seldom defines what the middle is. Probably his chief defect, both in general and as a presidential candidate, is lack of definition.

He has little talent for abstract thought, and seems to lack a fixed body of coherent philosophical belief. On the other hand he is deeply aware of what he calls spiritual value.

Self-reliance, unity of purpose, a fixed moral faith, confidence in our own destiny, devotion to freedom, dedication to the traditional American concept of a nation built on individual human rights, personal dignity and integrity, access to the fullest information, courage—these are factors he stresses.

To sum it up, the general would be orderly, decent, and honorable in the White House. He wants unity and strength. He is wholesome; he has a great ability to listen; he would take good advice. He has a fine inspirational quality. He would be economical, and he believes in peace.

Steel Mill Output Set At 15.3 Pct. Capacity

NEW YORK, July 21 (AP)—Steel mills will step up production a tiny bit this week but still remain 85 per cent idle because of the 50-day old steel strike.

The American Iron & Steel Institute estimated mills will operate this week at 15.3 per cent of capacity and produce 318,000 tons of steel. Last week's actual rate was 15.2 per cent and tonnage 316,000. A month ago the operated rate was 11.8 per cent and the mills turned out 246,000 tons of steel.

World Court Cited to U. S., Sultan Treaty

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, July 21 (AP)—The United States asserted before the World Court today its right to question France's acts in Morocco if they hamper Moroccan trade.

Adrian Fisher, State Department legal expert, representing the U. S. in its dispute with France over the rights of American businessmen in French Morocco opened his rebuttal to France's arguments.

Fisher told the court a longstanding treaty between the U. S. and Sultan guaranteed economic freedom for Morocco.

Last week France contested this freedom on the basis of the rights of France as a protective power over Morocco.

Fisher declared the defense of American treaty rights was "in perfect harmony with the evolutionary development of Morocco under the aegis of France."

Gifts Replace Stolen Bike

PHENIX CITY, Ala., July 21—(AP)—Newt Jones had two bicycles and a motorbike today, plus offers of several others, to console him for the loss of his bicycle, stolen more than two weeks ago.

But the boy who worried about the lost bike because it deprived his 9-year-old crippled sister of rides was figuring a way to convert some of his gifts into a wheel chair fund for Sue Ellen.

The bicycles and motorbike were delivered to the Jones home after Newt wrote a letter to the Ledger-Enquirer explaining what the loss of the bicycle meant to his little sister.

"I hope that the one who got that wheel reads this and always remember that they did not steel a bicycle but the onliest way a little cripple girl had to go about in the city," he wrote.

The first gift bike came from Muscogee County, Georgia, Police Chief J. Harvey Davidson, who early Sunday morning, after reading in the Columbus, Ga., newspaper of the boy's plight, gave him a used bicycle.

Can you imagine parking a car as easily as you steer it on a straightaway?

You twirl the steering wheel with one hand—turn the front wheels until you get the last inch of advantage from Buick's short "turning radius"—spot the car in a tight spot at the curb—or swing out when the car parked in front of you seems impossibly close.

For this alone a lot of people—women especially—are saying that Buick's Power Steering is the biggest advance since Dynaflow Drive.*

But you're going to find out something more as you pile up the miles.

You're going to feel the same confident and thrilling sense of command you have always felt in a Buick, because Power Steering only goes into action when extra effort is needed to turn the wheels.

You're going to find that your front wheels track just as they always have—that they automatically swing back on course, after you've made a turn, when you ease your grip on the steering wheel.

You're also going to find that Power Steering takes over when your front wheels hit loose dirt or sand—road irregularities and chuckholes—and smooths down their jerk or tug on the wheel in your hands.

All this adds to the ease and pleasure of driving. But it adds to the safety, too, because, in the rare event of a blowout, Power Steering helps you keep control. There's no sudden and violent jerk ever when this helping hand's on the job.

Add to this the level-gaited serenity of Buick's Million Dollar Ride—the "rarin' to go" exuberance of its Fireball 8 Engine—the spread-out room, the luxurious fabrics—the way this great performer can turn up its nose at gas stations—and there's only one smart thing for you to do:

Drop in—or pick up your phone—and arrange to give this marvel a tryout. Even the price says, Better buy Buick now.

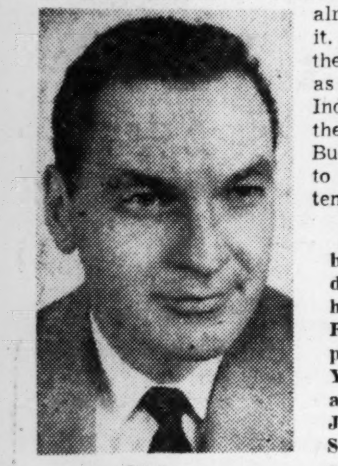
The Good Sign

After a succession of unworthy performances, it is the natural national pastime to scratch the Washington Senators as a candidate for the pennant. It was in 1933 that they won their last, for boy manager Joe Cronin, and with a ball club that was solid from backstop Rick Ferrell to center-fielder Fred Schulte, who could run and throw, and fill all the qualifications of a supreme leadoff man.

Still, as Santiago Ullrich mounted to the podium in Chattanooga Sunday afternoon, and as the Senators trifled playfully with the St. Louis Browns in a successful double-header stand, those not already so inclined would have to accept it. The Senators would be a factor all the way this American League season, and as much the uppity Yankees, Red Sox and Indians might object to their presence in the same once-exclusive neighborhood, Bucky Harris and his group would have to be taken into the fraternity of contenders.



Bisher

First place, they shouldn't have been so willing to unload their undesirables on Uncle Clark Griffith's house. Undesirables to the Yanks and Red Sox, perhaps, but stars and good providers to Washington. Fact is, the Yankees made the Senators what they are the day they swapped Jackie Jensen, Archie Wilson and Gerry Snyder for Irv Noren. Jensen has become major league since he slipped out from under the shadow of Yankee immortals. Wilson was packaged off to Boston in exchange for Ken Wood, not a frequent hitter, but one who deals in the long ball, and in throwing the outfield strike. Wood has the best arm in baseball.

The Red Sox came through again when Griff began to collect some of his old bric-a-brac. Son-in-law Cronin got a feverish desire for sidearming Sid Hudson, and father-in-law Griff let him have Hudson, in exchange for ex-Senator Walt Masterson and Randy Gumpert, who became winners with some action they'd been denied in Boston.

—Sow's Ears, Silk Purses and Cronin

It never has been safe to deal with Clark Griffith. It isn't that he's without scruples. It's just that the old gentleman has been hard-scrabbling so long he has developed to a keen degree the proverbial art of making silk purses out of sow's ears.

Among the first to have been particularly conscious of this talent should have been Cronin. After Pittsburgh had made a mess of the boy's early years, Griff picked him up for about what a good milch cow would cost these days and made him the leading shortstop of his time. Later, he peddled the boy off to Boston for $250,000 and Lyn Lary, who would have cut some tall grass as a shortstop if he hadn't been dazzled by night life in the metropolitan asphalt fields.

By far the biggest steal of this year, though, was the deal with the Yankees. Jensen for Noren alone would have been enough, but the philanthropic Yanks donated Snyder and Wilson to the Washington charity.

Still, the Yankees go on leading, and from all reports everyone is just as happy as if Noren had turned out to be a carbon of DiMaggio.

—Desperate Bluege Called on Santiago

What's Santiago Ullrich got to do with this?

Well, it's a rather old story, goes back to 1945, the last time the Senators made a run for it. It was a real cat fight that season in the American League between eight of the worst clubs that ever went to the post. The toothless, the spavined, the arthritic, the retread, they could get jobs and hold them that war year.

Eventually, Detroit won the flag by default. But the Washingtons, reinforced in late stages by the return of two high-class pros, Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis, breathed lustfully down the Tigers' neck. With one more pitcher, they'd have made the grade. They missed it as was by a mere game.

This is where Ullrich figured in. Santiago was a Senator that year, a 22-year-old Cuban kid who'd have been on the island yet were is not for the state of pitching emergency that existed. Joe Cambria corraled him and brought him in from Cuba, a raw, green boy half frightened of his own shadow.

I recall the crucial day as if it were last Sunday morning. The Senators were scrambling, hanging on by a hair. Griff himself was about ready to charge the mound, but on this day Manager Ossie Bluege scraped the bottom of the locker room to meet a double-header, started Ullrich and a now forgotten semipro named Walter Holborow. It was like closing your eyes and jumping over a cliff.

But the desperate Bluege landed on his feet, running. Amigo Ullrich won his game, and then Holborow, with some assistance from peg-legged Bert Shepherd, staggered through. It was the only big league game he ever won.

Ullrich won two more that season, but when the pros came marching home, Santiago went marching back to Cuba. From time to time since the Senators have requested his presence at spring training, but each year Santiago has come down with the gout, or some other felling disease and stuck it out in Havana. This year, for the first time since 1945, Ullrich has consented to come out of Cuba. This could be a symbolic gesture, unless the Senators get so desperate that Ullrich gets a call to Washington again.

Marietta, Dalton, Ringgold Win Legion Junior Battles

By ERNIE HYNDS

Marietta and Dalton continued undefeated and Ringgold evened its record at one-up as Seventh District American Legion Junior baseball play moved through its second round at Dalton Monday night.

On the strength of Dink Farmer's two-run single in the seventh, Marietta edged Lindale, 6-5. Dalton, sparked by Bill Dodd's three-run homer in the fourth, drubbed Rockmart, 9-1, and Ringgold swept Chatsworth out of the tournament, 23-3.

Either Marietta, the tournament favorite, or Dalton, its defending champion, will sacrifice its perfect record when the two clash Tuesday night at 8:15. In other Tuesday action Smyrna meet Rockmart at 2 and Lindale goes against Ringgold at 5, with the losers dropping from the double elimination tournament.

Besides Farmer, Ed McFarland contributed most to Marietta's victory over Lindale with a home run, triple and single in four trips.

Dalton's Dodd had a double and single besides his homer in three and teammate Jim Middleton had four singles in four tries.

Perhaps the most outstanding thing on the Dalton ledger though was Bob Caldwell's fine four-hit pitching performance. He struck out eleven in letting the Rockmart nine down with a single tally that scored in the ninth inning.

Roy Elrod topped the Ringgold attack with three for five while Jim Stokes was getting two for three in Chatsworth's losing cause.

Albany advanced unmolested to the District Two finals against undefeated Moultrie Tuesday night when Blakely forfeited its semifinal tilt Monday evening.

Action in District Four begins Wednesday at Thomaston with Carrollton playing Newnan in the afternoon and the winner facing Thomaston that night.

U. S. Athletes Capture 4 Gold Track Medals

Unheralded Remigino Runs First in 100; Americans 1-2-3 in Shot Put; Moore Wins

Condensed From Constitution Wire Reports

United States athletes captured four Olympic gold medals in track and field Monday, including an astonishing photo-finish victory by little Lindy Remigino in the 100 meters and a grand slam in the shot-put.

This swept America ahead of Soviet Russia in the battle for team honors, 72 points to 40. Czechoslovakia was third with 15, followed by Great Britain with 14 and Italy, 11.

Charlie Moore took the 400-meter hurdle crown and tied his own Olympic record. Parry O'Brien led Darrow Hooper and Jim Fuchs in a sweep of the shot and broke the games' mark, and Jerome Biffle won the broad jump.

But it was Remigino who stole the show.

Of the six finalists in the 100 meters, Emmanuel Bailey of Great Britain was clearly the favorite. Then there was lean Herb McKenley of Jamaica, once the world's best at 400 meters. Russia had its powerful champion, Vladimir Soukharev. Dean Smith of Texas seemed America's brightest hope, for Remigino had not won a single major U. S. title this spring.

But the New Yorker from Manhattan College "had it" Monday. The six men flashed down the crushed brick red track under dismal skies as 35,000 roared. Four swept over the line as one, two others were one meter back. The judges did not try to call it.

Official photographs quickly showed the decision — Remigino won, McKenley second, Bailey third, Smith fourth. All four were given the same time, 10.4.

Only final event of the day not won by the U. S. was the 50-kilometer walk (31¼ miles). Giuseppe Dordoni of Italy won it in the world record time of four hours, 28 minutes, 7.8 seconds.

But the day was America's, probably the biggest it will have in these Games.

O'Brien hit 17.41 meters (57 feet 1.43 inches) for a new Olympic record. Hooper was two centimeters behind O'Brien at 17.39, with Fuchs, holder of the world's record, at 17.06.

It was the sixth time the U. S. has slammed the shot put and taken all three medals.

Hurdler Moore took the lead at the start of the 400-meter event and never relinquished it. Jurii Lituev of Russia made a mighty challenge but Moore held him off and won by nearly five meters.

In the broad jump, American ace George Brown of UCLA fouled three times and was out of it. Biffle, late of Denver, rose to the occasion with a jump of 7.57 meters (24 feet 10.03 inches) and Meredith Gourdine, formerly of Cornell, was second with 7.51 meters (24 feet 7.67 inches). Per-

High-Riding Crax Face Vols; Brittin To Hurl Dell Opener

By JESSE OUTLAR
Constitution Sports Writer

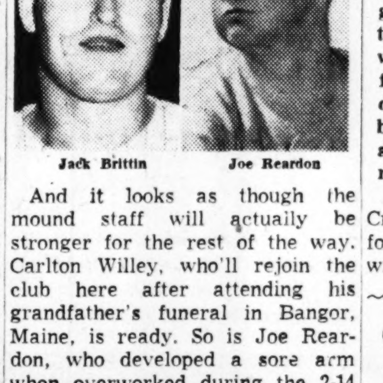
NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 21—The Ponce de Leon pennant express steamed into Nashville Monday and Dixie Walker and his crew were confident that they won't be derailed en route to Atlanta's 14th flag.

Engineer Walker, usually a conservative operator, is fully aware that 56 games remain and his club is only one length in front. But, as he says, "those boys are convinced that no one can stop them, and I'm inclined to agree."

Sunday's 5-1, 7-0, blitz of Chattanooga gave the club a terrific psychological lift. And, it may have put the Lookouts, considered a stout foe, on the skids.

As the Crackers moved into Sulphur Dell, a dangerous crossing in the past, they were traveling at an .800 pace in their last 25 games.

Only twice during that sizzling span, have Cracker pitchers been knocked out during an inning; only in four games were hurlers lifted for pinch-hitters, and Art Fowler went out with an injury. Otherwise, Walker got 18 route-going stints.



Jack Brittin   Joe Reardon

And it looks as though the mound staff will actually be stronger for the rest of the way. Carlton Willey, who'll rejoin the club here after attending his grandfather's funeral in Bangor, Maine, is ready. So is Joe Reardon, who developed a sore arm when overworked during the 2-14 losing siege.

Since the All-Star game, Cracker hurlers, in winning nine of 11, have yielded only 21 runs in 98 innings on a mere 76 hits.

Jack Brittin, who has won six of his last seven decisions, gets the opening nod against the Vols Tuesday night. Monday was an off day. Single games follow Wednesday and Thursday, and the Crackers wheel back to Poncey Friday to start a four-game series with Birmingham.

Even the schedule favors the Crackers in the Southern race, for 33 of their remaining 56 games will be played at home.

Cracker Home Named League's Homer Haven

Nashville, long-used to cruel jibes about the cracker-box proportions of Sulphur Dell, finally has a horse on Atlanta.

A Nashville Banner survey, by George K. Leonard, reveals that Ponce de Leon Park, with its shortened left-field barrier (335 feet), leads the Southern Association with 80 home runs.

Nashville, whose right field screen rears itself only 262 feet from home plate, isn't even second. Birmingham's Rickwood Field is, with 70. Only 65 four-baggers have cleared the Dell ramparts this year.

Other parks' home run production:

Memphis, 57; Little Rock and New Orleans, 47; Mobile, 43; Chattanooga, 34.

REMIGINO FEAT HAILED 'CINDERELLA STORY'

HELSINKI, July 21—(AP)—U. S. Olympic track and field coach Brutus Hamilton Monday tagged the 100-meter victory of Lindy Remigino "the Cinderella story of the year."

The head mentor of track and field said he wouldn't attempt to say whom he had thought would win it, but added:

"That's the Cinderella story of the year. It was clearly an upset but an excellent performance. I am satisfied on the whole with the team's performance.

He said Charley Moore's 50.8 victory in the 400-meter hurdles was "done the hard way, in the outside lane and on a heavy track, and it was excellently done."

But Remigino, who didn't win a major 100-meter championship in the U. S. this year, was tops on Hamilton's list.

League Hits Wild Doings At Fitzgerald

After Ump Attack, Negro Batboy Play

By BEN LANGELLA
Special to The Constitution

FITZGERALD, July 21—Fitzgerald's entry in the class D Georgia State League has been placed on probation as climax of a hectic baseball week end that saw, among other things, umpires attacked by Fitzgerald fans and a Negro playing in Georgia pro baseball for the first time.

In a called meeting by league president Bill Estroff Sunday, a $200 fine was levied against the Fitzgerald club for failing to provide adequate police protection to umpires following a Friday night contest. The league ordered a probationary status for the Pioneers at the same time.

In addition, Fitzgerald Manager Charley Ridgeway was suspended and league umpire Ed Kubik fired, after Ridgeway inserted a Negro batboy into the lineup in a Saturday night game with Statesboro.

Ace Adams, who retired as skipper of the club only last week, will take over the club's reins again until Ridgeway is reinstated.

The batboy incident occured when, with Fitzgerald trailing Statesboro, 10-0, in the eighth inning Ridgeway summoned Joe Louis Ralford, 12-year-old Negro, to pinch-hit for outfielder Ray Nichting. Ralford grounded out sharply to third base in his only plate appearance. He went into the outfield in Nichting's stead and made a sensational catch of a drive off the bat of Jim Shuster, one of the league's leading hitters. Fans applauded.

In placing the fine and probation, the league cited the incident as a "travesty on baseball."

Friday night's umpire riot came about after close decisions at home plate and first base against the Fitzgerald team. Around 200 fans rushed onto the field and mobbed the arbiters. A local deputy sheriff, George Harrell, took the umps to the safety of his own car and was slugged in the automobile. The umpires' car had been sabotaged—sand in the gas tanks and air out of the tires.

On Sunday, league umpires went on a brief strike, protesting the fans' action.

Record Field Seen For Augusta Golf

215 Expected To Qualify; Medal May Go at 68 or 69

By BERT PRATHER
Constitution Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, July 21—A record field of more than 200 golfers was expected to tee off here Tuesday in 18 holes of qualifying play which will set up the flights in the annual Georgia State amateur championship.

One hundred and sixty-five had registered Monday afternoon, and officials of Augusta Country Club expected at least 50 more to show up before Tuesday's qualifying deadline.

Arnold Blum, the Macon stylist who has captured the last two State's, will not be required to qualify, but the remaining hopefuls will have to face blistering midsummer temperature and the exceedingly tough 6,604-yard par 36-36—72 Augusta Country Club layout Tuesday.

Uncle Lummie Brinson, official greeter for the tournament, says a 68 or 69 may be good enough to capture the Medalist prize. He figures such crack local entries as Frank Mulherin, runner-up to Blum last year at Druid Hills golf club, Atlanta, Art Patchin, Gummy Harrison, Larry McCrary and others may top par by three or four strokes over their home course.

Host pro Henry Linder is not quite as optimistic as Uncle Lummie. Henry says he has found the course mighty tough himself and believes a 70 or 71 might win the medal.

Several of the young threats were out familiarizing themselves with the layout Monday. Lester Kelly and Frank Stevenson Jr. of Coach Howell Hollis' University of Georgia team tried out the course but did not report scores. Stevenson is the lad who carried Blum to the 24th hole in last year's semifinal. Kelly, who won the Newnan Invitation last Thursday and lost one-up in the finals of Carrollton's Sunset Hills Invitation Sunday, is making his first start in the state.

Billy Key, Columbus Country Club standout who went to the semifinals of the recent National Collegiate tourney, may prove to be the man to beat. Billy passed up last week's Southern Amateur in order to be fresh for this one. He hopes to duplicate brother Jack's victory in 1949 at Albany.

Still another fledgling is Jack Lumpkin of Athens. Jack was runner-up in the '52 State Junior and is capable of shooting in the men's league. Don Grissom, 17-year-old Griffin golfer who is Florida bound with Cedartown's Doug Sanders, strengthened the junior delegation late Monday.

Dick Hackett, 1947 champ from Rome, and Atlantic City titlist Pierce Miller were among the early arriving veteran threats.

In addition to setting up the championship flight of 32 and all lower flights, Tuesday's qualifying will also determine the team champion. Each club is permitted to enter a four-man team in this competition. Match play starts Wednesday and continues through Saturday.

Cards-Bosox Tie Reaps 15 Gs For Torporcer

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 21—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals gave up four unearned runs in the ninth inning, then scored once in the bottom half to gain a 9-9 exhibition game deadlock with the Boston Red Sox Monday night.

The game was a benefit for George (Specs) Torporcer, former Rochester and Cardinal infield star, and one-time farm director of the Red Sox.

Torporcer, now totally blind after a series of eye operations last fall, will realize more than $15,000.

LAURICELLA SIGNS WITH GRID LIONS

DETROIT, July 21—(AP)—Hank Lauricella, Tennessee's all-American halfback, Monday signed a one-year contract to play professional football for Detroit Lions. Terms were not revealed.

Hank Lauricella

General Manager Nick Kerbawy said the 21-year-old triple threat back would be drilled as an understudy to the Lions' famed left half, Doak Walker.

Lauricella, a native of New Orleans, was acclaimed by Gen. Bob Neyland, his Tennessee coach, as "the finest football player in the country" last year.

Thompson Eyes 50-Miler At Lakewood

Roscoe Thompson, an Atlantan who will be driving before the home folks in the city's first combined modified and sportsman stock car races at Lakewood next Sunday, has decided to drive a sportsman car to try for first prize in the 50-mile feature run.

Sunday's unique program, directed by Sam Nunis Speedways and sanctioned by NASCAR, will also include two 25-mile heat races.

Such driving standouts as the Flock brothers—Tim and Fonty. Jack Smith, Gober Sosebee, Buck Baker, Speedy Thompson, Tex Keene, Al Keller, Frank Schneider and Lee Petty are expected to be among entries.

The first of Sunday's three races will begin at 3 p. m. on the one-mile Lakewood dirt oval. No other major NASCAR races are booked Sunday, assuring a crack field of drivers and cars here.

MIZELL GRABS SPOT

Old-Timers Spark Albany All-Timers

By BILL McGROTHA

A lone postwar player measures to the standards set by M. M. (Motie) Wiggins in picking the all-time Albany Cardinals Georgia-Florida League team for The Constitution.

That one candidate, coincidentally, fills a distinctively colorful bill in Albany baseball annals. He's Wilmer Mizell, the country kid from Vinegar Bend, who now, a scant three years from his pro debut at Albany in midseason, 1949, is pitching for parent St Louis.

The fabled Mizell finished 12-3 with a slick 1.98 earned run average in his rookie campaign.

Wiggins, long-time president and league director for Albany and one of the founders of the Class D circuit, who served as its head for a period, calls Johnny Keane his all-time manager.

While carrying active .299 and .315 bats in 1938-39, Keane guided the Cardinals to two straight league pennants. He now skippers Columbus, Ohio, in the AAA American Association.

Wiggins lines his infield this way; Eddie Murphy, first base; Eddie Kazak, second base; Floyd Stickney, third base; Red Schoendienst, shortshot.

Kazak, one of several Albany players to graduate to the major leagues, posted a record .378 batting average in 1941. The figure, along with a total of 221 hits, still stand all-time league highs.

Stickney stroked an even .300 in 1940. Schoendienst had a .269 to show for 68 games in 1942, but the redhead's deft fielding and allround ability are the scales by which following shortstops are weighed.

The outfield lists Bob Joratz and Bill Endicott, teammates of 1937-38, plus Erv (Four-Sack) Dusak (1939-40).

Joratz went .301 and .347, Endicott .297 and .354 during their two-year sojourns. Dusak, a regular with St. Louis in 1948 who now is with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League, was .309 and .335 for his stay.

With Mizell on the three-man pitching staff are Stan Ferens (1940) and Hank Nowak (1937-38). Ferens and Nowak posted identical best-year marks of 20-7, with the former's feat the more remarkable because of a fourth-place club.

Bob Scheffing (1936) is the catcher. Now a coach with the St. Louis Browns, Scheffing later saw big-time service with the Cubs, Reds and Cardinals.

Utility nod on the 13-player squad goes to Bobby Rhawn (1938-39), Rhawn, who later had a fling with the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox, showed .246 and .282 seasons.

Madison Hurls Kiwanis To Crown at Buckhead

By MARION GAINES

Rick Madison, 12-year-old son of Kiwanis Manager R. J. Madison, gained credit for both victories Monday at Bagley Park as his team dumped first-half champ Civitan twice, 7-6 and 5-0, and captured the Buckhead Little League championship.

Madison pitched the first two frames of the opener, went all the way in the second, a one-hit shutout against Civitan's Stan (No-Hit) Gann, who was touched for eight safeties, most of them of infield variety.

Kiwanis notched the first game with a six-run third frame. Mike Thomas' double and Hank Lesesne's triple with the sacks filled were the big blows. Bob Blackwell's Civitans took advantage of four Kiwanis errors, a bases-loaded single by Harold Thompson and a ringing two-bagger by Jimmy Campbell to push over a half-dozen markers.

Only safety off Madison in the nightcap was a double by Linden (Tiny) Williamson. Top clubber of the day was Kiwanis' Pete DuBose, with a single and double in the first fray, two singles in the second.

Only other player to collect two knocks were Kiwanis' Luther Tatum and Bobby Buckley. Even in defeat Gann looked like an All-Star, fanning 10.

LITTLE SHOTS: The Atlanta District tournament will be played at Bagley Park Aug. 5-7, with teams from Decatur, College Park, Hapeville, Buckhead and Augusta competing . . . Kiwanis third sacker Lamar Lummus was felled by a Stanley Gann fast ball in the second inning of the nightcap and was carried from the field. Lummus came back in a couple of frames. . . . Sandy Springs' John Ferguson was the league home run king with five circuit socks. . . . One of the better catchers in the loop, Hank Lesesne of Kiwanis, is only 10 years old. . . . Rotary catcher David Bates captured the batting crown with a sparkling .455 average. . . . Civitan left-fielder Harold Thompson entered the twin-bill batting .000 for the year (about three games for him), then singled with the bases filled.

Abe Massar, Ozmer Win

Abe Massar and Charlie Ozmer, two veterans of the Bobby Jones Golf Club wars, advanced to the finals of the 1952 club championship meet over the week end and will play for the crown this week.

Massar downed George Rolfs, former Atlanta newspaper champ, 6 and 4, and Ozmer won on default from Russell Bridges.

F. A. Adams dumped R. A. Whittier, 3 and 1, and R. E. Stewart bested F. A. Bellacour, 1-up, to reach the finals in first flight play at Pro Billy Wilson's layout.

Paul Waner, Heilmann Enrolled In Hall of Fame

National Loop Prexy Giles Criticizes Bonus Recruiting

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 21—(AP)—Paul Waner and the late Harry Heilmann were enshrined in baseball's Hall of Fame Monday in ceremonies conducted in front of the baseball museum.

Waner, still a wiry 145 pounds at 45, was present as Warren Giles, National League president, unveiled the plaque and gave him a miniature version. Heilmann, who died July 9, 1951, was represented by his wife.

Both men were elected in January by the Baseball Writers Association whose president, Lou Smith of Cincinnati, introduced Hall of Famers Cy Young and Charley Gehringer before he turned the party over to Giles. Addition of Waner and Heilmann raised membership to 62.

In a brief address, Giles rapped the current practice of huge bonus payments to high school and college boys.

"The major leagues must support amateur ball," he said. "High school, college and American Legion baseball. We must constantly recruit for the pro ranks.

"But we must recruit boys who play ball because of their burning desire to excell, not because of an extravagant financial influence.

"If we can not get enough by those means, I believe it would be better to operate with fewer clubs, and fewer players than to compromise in any way with the great traditions of the game."

Paul Waner

Harry Heilmann

After Giles introduced Waner, a three-time National League batting champ who made 3,152 hits in his career, the veteran responded briefly.

Yanks Slap Bums In 'Series Preview'

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—In what 48,263 fans flocked to see as a "World Series Preview" Tuesday night, the New York Yankees retained their jinx over the Brooklyn Dodgers, soaring to a 5-3 victory on the wings of Mickey Mantle's homer with one aboard in the eighth and last inning.

This marked the seventh straight year the Yanks have won the Mayor's Trophy from their N. L. rivals. The worst they have ever fared in mid-season competition with their local rivals is a tie with the Giants.

Berardino HomerTops Chicubs, 4-2

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 21. (AP)—Lefty Dick Rozek struck out six men in three hitless relief innings Monday after Johnny Berardino hit a tie-breaking home run as Cleveland topped the Chicago Cubs, 4-2, in an exhibition game at Doubleday Field.

Harry Simpson and Joe Tipton, both Georgians, smashed successive pitches for homers in the fourth.

Tommy Brown tied it up in the fifth with a two-run homer.

McCall's Five-Hitter Stuns Lookouts, 2-1

Pelicans Trim Little Rock; Memphis Pounds Mobile, 13-7

By BILL FERGUSON
United Press Sports Writer

Birmingham's John McCall pitched a nifty five-hitter Monday night to hand Chattanooga its third straight setback, 2-1, and drop the Lookouts a game and a half away from loop-leading Atlanta.

The veteran left-hander hurled scoreless ball after Gene Verble's double and a single by Bob Oldis gave the Lookouts their only tally in the second. McCall's performance barely shaded Bunky Stewart, who tossed an eight-hitter.

Third-place New Orleans pulled to within one-game of second by trimming Little Rock, 8-2, and Memphis kept Mobile on the skids, 13-7.

New Orleans' Frank Thomas unloaded his 21st home run in the seventh against Little Rock and broke up a tight duel between Pelican George O'Donnell and Little Rock's Alex McNeilance.

Most Fishermen Getting Hep To Small Channel 'Cat'

By JIMMY WALKER

Fishermen who would avoid a somewhat pellagrous diet of hush puppies and coffee, one which includes fish, will do well to get rigged up for "shine-eye" fishing. Now that the bream and bass pace has slackened smart anglers are going for the shine-eye, and scores of outdoorsmen will tell you that there is no better eating than this small channel catfish.

Walker

At least a month to six weeks away are the days when the "chowder cats" are taken. These big 10-20-pound channel catfish usually start biting with the coming of cool weather, ordinarily in September. Under a knowing hand they make a chowder that rivals Georgia's famous Brunswick stew.

Right now, one has little difficulty in filling a string with shine-eyes if the right place is found.

Shine-eyes are caught in the same place that big ones will be caught in early fall. Look for a deep spot in the river where the current is swift or eddying. Very often the best spots are near the middle of the stream, meaning you'll have to tie your boat to a snag or half-submerged treetop, since it is inconvenient to find a suitable anchor for deep, swift water.

Best catfishing equipment is a rod and reel. Be sure you've got a strong, steel hook, and bait it with worms or shrimp. The big ones seem to prefer shrimp. Use a slip-shot, no cork, and make your cast downstream, otherwise the current will carry your hook into a root or log and become hung.

Fish so that your bait is on the bottom, even if the water is 20 feet or more deep. Move your bait around slightly every few minutes if you don't get a bite. Patience is not a virtue here.

Bait casters who sneer at catfishing as lacking sport have never tied into a 20-pound channel catfish. Fellows who know better will tell you that landing a big "cat" sometimes takes half an hour and is just about like bulldogging a steer.

Ex-University of Georgia football stars Porter Payne, Atlanta, and Jesup High School coach John Donaldson "dry-landed" a 12-lb. bass in the Altamaha River. Auburn Lands Lightfoot, Honest Injun!

College Corner: Chief Ben Lightfoot of Luverne, Ala., High has enrolled at Auburn and aims to pitch his tent at fullback. He's an Injun, honest . . . Southern Amateur golf champion Gay Brewer has an eye on a grant-in-aid to Tennessee although he earlier avowed an interest in Louisiana State . . . And this will be the first fall in which Auburn halfback Rigas Coptstias has been able to serve a second year under the same coach. Hazlehurst's Wendell Ussery hoes tobacco, cotton and corn on his father's farm to get in shape for his University of Georgia candidacy. He's a fullback and a crack one . . . The Cleveland Browns offered Tennessee's Bert Rechichar $6,500 just to play safety, but he wants to skip any more football if he can make the baseball grade with the Indians' Eastern League farm at Reading, Pa.

Ex-Georgia tackle Marion Campbell enters army service this summer as a 240-pounder. But it's a fact that another Campbell, ace former Savannah guard Johnny, weighs into Georgia football heavier (210) than Marion did at the start. Wallace Butts counts young Campbell "capable of playing plenty on defense even as a freshman" . . . No more line-busting for John Dodd, LaGrange boy gone Vanderbilt. He'll fullback from the defensive side this autumn . . . Jim Cummings, 6-7 basketeer from Florence, Ala., is in school at Vandy, figured of Southeastern Conference stature as a freshman and a big-league prospect as a first baseman as well . . . Transit's Wire Shift Cost Eyed

By HERMAN HANCOCK

The Atlanta Transit Company's estimate of the cost of rearranging trackless trolley wires along downtown Marietta St. was labeled approximately $35,000 too high Monday by City Electrical Supt. Dewey Johnson.

Johnson told City Council that the project should cost $51,822 as compared with the estimate of $85,898, submitted by Transit Company engineers. Chief difference in the figures were in labor costs and allowance for contingencies.

The electrical superintendant's report was submitted to council's Public Works committee for further study.

SHIFT TO CURB

The Marietta St. project calls for the shifting of trolley lines to the curb from Five Points to Spring St. The Transit Company has insisted that the city pay the cost of the work.

Transit Company President Leland Anderson said an effort will be made to "shave the costs" but he pointed out that it may be necessary to adjust original plans.

In another important action Monday, Council voted to send the proposed multi-million-dollar McDaniel redevelopment project back to the Municipal Planning Commission following a petition for deferment by 1.000 residents of the area.

LIBRARY FUND

Council also:

1. Added $12,280 to a $40.000 fund earmarked for construction of a $52,280 addition to complete the Ida Williams library branch at Buckhead. Gilbert Beers is low bidder.

2. Adopted a resolution opposing establishment of a hospital for alcoholics on the Candler estate and offered to develop a park there if DeKalb County will agree to an annexation to justify the outlay. Ald. Dowse Donaldson and Ed Gilliam offered the measure.

3. Called on the national Democratic convention to nominate Senator Russell for the presidency. Previously Council had urged Russell's nomination, but Councilman Joe Allen presented the new paper.

REROUTING DECLINED

4. Declined to permit the Transit Company to reroute the feeder bus for the Grant Park area and filed a new company request for the rerouting.

5. Officially accepted a collection of works of Margaret Mitchell Marsh, author of "Gone With the Wind." The data will be placed in the Atlanta Public Library.

6. Asked the bond commission to provide adequate lighting for the south leg of the expressway and for the West By-Pass from North Ave. to Bankhead Highway and passed a resolution asking that action be taken for installation of 1,500 new street lights in 1953. Also approved was a measure agreeing that the city pay for 58 street lights in Blair Village. The lights were installed before that area became a part of Atlanta.

7. Sent to the Finance committee a proposal for $121,000 to replace 17 worn out trucks in the Sanitary Department, raised electrical fees from a minimum of 50 cents to $1 an inspection and set inspection fees for transformers at $1 each; sent to the Finance committee a proposal to raise salaries of election managers to $20 a day, assistant managers to $15 and clerks to $12.50.

8. Filed letters from Mrs. Fred E. Hinkle and Ray Rosenthal asking that rent controls be allowed to expire Sept. 30 as set by Congress.

Annexation Election Voted For Ben Hill

East Point City Council voted Monday night to call for a referendum to let Ben Hill voters decide whether they want to be annexed by East Point.

The special election would be held between 30 and 60 days after Fulton County Ordinary Eugene Gunby receives notice of the council action, first major one under Home Rule. After the election, East Point voters would have to approve the annexation.

Both East Point and College Park voted to modify their ban on use of unessential water and will now allow citizens to water lawns and wash cars for one hour between the hours of 10 p. m. and 9 a. m.

It was also announced at the East Point meeting that Mayor E. J. Bass has applied for the post of city treasurer, a new position created by the Home Rule Charter.

It had been reported for some time that the mayor might apply for the job which entails supervision of all city finances, but this was the first confirmation.

The announcement came after council decided not to take up applications for city treasurer and city personnel director until a special meeting July 29.

Before meeting, council members in a caucus had agreed to postpone the consideration of applications in hope of attracting more applicants for the two jobs.

DETECTIVE, HOLTZENDORFS IN COURT

Wife Bound Over Here In Holtzendorf Shooting

Mrs. Harold Holtzendorf Monday was bound over to Fulton County grand jury on charge of assault with intent to murder. Municipal Court Judge A. W. Callaway ordered her held under $500 bond.

She is charged with shooting her husband, an Atlanta dentist, from inside his bedroom as he fled outside their North Fulton Dr., N. E., home.

"She did it in a fit of jealousy," the tall, graying doctor told Judge Callaway. "I won't prosecute here nor before the grand jury."

However, Det. M. W. Blackwell insisted the case go to the grand jury for a decision, saying "In view of the evidence, that is all I can recommend."

Detective Blackwell testified Mrs. Holtzendorf first admitted the shooting, then blamed a friend of the doctor's listed on a police report as a 70-year-old Atlanta woman.

When questioned by detectives, the woman told them she "Had not seen the doctor in many months and had talked to Mrs. Holtzendorf on the phone Saturday afternoon, prior to the shooting," according to Detective Blackwell.

Eleven-year-old Hedy Holtzendorf, who gave officers an eyewitness account of the shootings, was not required to appear in court.

In answer to a query from Judge Callaway, Dr. Holtzendorf said "She shot me right where I sit." He limped perceptibly.

He added "She's a good wife and mother. I don't want to prosecute her."

When Detective Blackwell said he "would rather the grand jury hear the case." Mrs. Holtzendorf said: "Judge Callaway, they just want the papers to write us up again—that's all."

She was escorted to Fulton County jail to make bond.

ACCIDENTS

Worker Hurt In Tumble Off Scaffold

A 32-year-old construction worker was injured Monday when he fell 25 feet to the pavement from scaffolding on a building at Luckie and Cone St., N. W.

Listed at Grady Hospital as Doyle Lawley of 5087 Peachtree Rd., N. E., he was in "fair" condition with two broken arms and multiple lacerations.

Mrs. Lorina Nichols, housewife, of 1520 Northwest Dr., N. W. received a head injury in an auto mishap on Bankhead Ave., near Center Hill, N. W., Grady attaches said.

Fifteen-month-old Robert Thomas Anthony of 404 Capitol Ave., S. E., fell down 30 steps at his home and escaped with bruises.

Visiting Bear Shot On Downtown Street

FONTANA, Calif.—(AP)—Residents of Fontana were proud when their city was incorporated recently, but something happened to dampen their ego.

It seems a 500-pound bear hadn't heard about the incorporation order and wandered into town from the mountains nearby.

Council Asks Solons To Put Driver Cases in City Courts

Drunk driver cases will be tried by judges of Atlanta Municipal Courts if the Georgia Legislature heeds a request passed unanimously Monday by City Council.

The council also asked the assembly to abolish a position of president of the board of aldermen when wards and council are reduced in 1954.

Councilman Robert Dennis, chairman of Council's ordinance and legislation committee, presented the unanimous committee recommendation that city courts be given authority to try all traffic cases.

At the present time drunk drivers must be bound over to the criminal court of Fulton County.

Dennis and Ald. Ed A. Gilliam led the fight for abolition of the board president. Gilliam said the post is a "ridiculous appendage." Council John A. White and others attacked the measure to eliminate the office.

After the vote was taken, several prospective candidates caused a flurry when they appeared at the clerk's desk to demand they be recorded against abolition. Among them were Councilmen Ralph Huie, Bob Clark, and Jimmy Vickers and Ald. Milton Farris. White and Councilman Ogden Doremus previously had asked to be recorded against passage of the proposal.

Provisional Mayor Pro Tem Lee Field ruled in the future that members of Council must demand recordings of their votes at the time the vote is taken and not after other business has been transacted.

The first jewelry was fashioned, before recorded history, for divine protection and magic power.

Pensioner Dies in Fire

A 70-year-old Negro woman identified as Lela Mottley was burned to death late Monday in her two-room cabin at 2147 Jackson Pl., S. W.

Fireman extinguished the blaze within minutes after they reached the house through an alley from Cascade Rd., Homicide Dets. J. E. Helms and W. M. Holland reported.

A kerosene lamp burned a hole in the floor, and flames spread through the house as the woman slept, firemen told the detectives. All interior walls and ceiling were charred, they said.

An old age pensioner, the woman lived alone, relatives said.

New Jewels Fashioned For 'Queen'

By YOLANDE GWIN

American women, whether the wife of a presidential candidate or a top career woman, will have their own crown jewels this year.

Jewelry designers, taking cognizance of the forthcoming coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, have made their accessories with an eye toward crown jewel duplications.

FULL LINE DISPLAYED

A full line is on display here this week during the fifth semi-annual Southern jewelry show.

"We have more combination sets than ever before," said Ed Selwyn, a representative of one of the larger fashion jewelry houses," and there is a definite trend toward matching and blending of jewels with clothes.

"Necklaces are much more elaborate and bracelets are wider. The high shades are much in evidence too, with a lot of ice blue, topaz, jet and rhinestones."

Along the line of accessories shown at the exhibits at three uptown hotels, tim eis playing an important part in the future plans of American families.

WRIST WATCH TRENDS

A representative of one line, Edmund Strauss, said:

"Women want watches to match their jewelry and this year there is a great trend toward the bracelet-type, gold bands. Some of the more popular styles are coin, block or chevrons. The black cord is said to show better contrast to a diamond watch.

Clocks, he said, range from an eight-day traveling model one and one-half by two inches, to a musical alarm model available with seven different melodies, or an eight-day model which has the date, a thermometer, a barometer and a hydrometer.

DON'T REPRIMAND TOO HARSHLY
To Her, Little Incidents Assume Grave Meaning

MARCIA WINN

Trifle Looms Large To Small Children

If only parents could anticipate a crisis, they might be better prepared to meet it when it comes. But with small children seemingly trivial matters assume mighty proportions at once, and someone has to settle them.

Now the other night a child we know came running home with a friend. Could he have dinner at Jimmy's house?

The mother was firm. "No," she said, " you cannot. You were there last night." Half an hour later she learned that her small, hungry innocent had returned to Jimmy's house, had said his mother had said "Yes," and had eaten heartily.

Perhaps she should have been happy he had eaten well for a change. He was disobedient, yes, but disobedience has to be tolerated to a certain extent at five.

But this was something different. This was deceit. It was the first lie. In the mother's mind it quickly built up a grave and sad enormity.

To ignore, the mother thought, might be to accept and encourage.

Angel was brought home and ordered to go to bed, alone.

Have you ever tried to explain truth and the necessity for it to a 5 year old?

So for a long time assurances of love and kisses are exchanged, and you go back downstairs thinking there are many problems larger than the price of beef, hoping you won't have to cope with another before morning, but hoping even more that you handled this one right.

MARY HAWORTH

Estranged From Mother, Girl Has Guilty Feeling

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Ever since I can remember, my mother sought sympathy for me, and I could see many wrong things in the home. Worst of all, my father openly rejected my only brother.

I saw my mother grow lonely, and bitter. At 19, when I went to another city for professional study, she made wild accusations about my character.

Recently I visited an aunt of mine, a woman of inner strength, mother of eight children. As Aunt Kate was talking by telephone to one of her daughters who is studying in my field, I almost broke down.

To think that my aunt was concerned about whether her daughter passed an examination! What can I do, so that I won't become panicky again.

—Z. E.

DEAR Z. E.: Your letter is an interesting example of "free association" of ideas, a term applied to seemingly random recollections that really bear down on a trouble spot in experience.

On observing your aunt's warm-hearted relationship with her daughter, you were suddenly stabbed with envy and terror—wishing that you lived in such sanctuary.

To avoid a repetition of this distress, you need (1) to perceive the deep roots of it; and (2) to cultivate a steady faith in your grown-up potentials.

You probably resented your mother's weakness. Naturally it was a shock when she turned against you. But I think the most shattering aspect had to do with a lurking guilt sense

As a guide to healthy thinking, read H. A. Overstreet's book "The Mature Mind." —M. H.

GIANT FIREPLACE IS HEART OF COOKS' HOME
Early American Decor

Celestine Sibley

Future for Aged Not All Black

The worst thing about the case of the Crane nursing home is the way it has added fuel to the flame of fear and uncertainty that burns within hundreds of old people in Fulton County.

Until Mrs. Crane's nursing homes on Washington St. were closed we were only vaguely aware of the large numbers of old people who are adrift in an unfriendly, uncaring world.

Since the newspaper stories about the condition of Mrs. Crane's establishments were published we have had several letters from men and women who are facing homelessness and who are terrified of the future.

"I am one of the unwanted and ill aged people," a woman wrote us. "I have no near relatives. Up to now I've been independent by selling first my home and then my furniture a piece at the time. I've paid my own bills and tended my own fire. But now I've reached the end of my row. In another few weeks before I get past traveling I'm going to have to knock on the door of an institution.

"I've never had to live in filth or disorder. Must I now? What happens to people like me? Is there no place where cleanliness and decency exist?"

Although the distressing truth is that the picture for old people is pretty black, it is not all black. There are a few institutions that are excellent.

As Dr. Minor L. Blackford pointed out in a letter to The Constitution the other day, "Our Lady of Perpetual Help" for cancer sufferers is a haven of help and is operated in a way that should be an example for other institutions.

The Fulton County almshouse out on Wiecua Road is a clean, cheerful place where old people are quartered two or three to a room and allowed freedom to surround themselves with trinkets and pictures from the past.

Battle Hill Haven, although far from ideal from a fire safety point of view, is clean and attractive. The A. G. Rhodes Home on Boulevard is a pleasant place where you learn with amazement that most of its patients are suffering from incurable illnesses.

"Eventide" on Ashby St. is filled with women who have, as our correspondent wrote, also "reached the end of the row" but who are so busy and so happily occupied they are not concerned about it.

The only trouble with these places is that they cannot take more people. The number of homeless old people far surpasses the number of places where they can get refuge for what they can pay.

But there is a bright spot on the horizon. The Salvation Army is turning its Washington St. center into a home for the aged and although it is promised a waiting list practically before it gets under way, perhaps it will establish a trend. For the sake of the thoroughly frightened people who are facing homelessness, we hope so.

South Trends To Modern

The South, land of the traditional and the antique, has taken a forward glance and made a wholehearted, if belated, acceptance of the modern, according to reports from the Southeastern china, glass and gift show held here this week.

With silver, glass and china manufacturers working more and more in conjunction with each other, the decided trend in buying table settings is to have both plates, glass and silver in matching—and modern—patterns.

A highlight of the show here is "Silver Wheat," a new flat silver pattern, designed to match "Wheat," a modern china favorite which features a sheaf of gold wheat on a white background. The same wheat pattern is used in a new line of crystal.

Shelton, a new pattern of china has a platinum border on a white background. A manufacturer has put out a matching pattern in crystal, which features the platinum band both inside and outside of the glass.

An old theme with a modern lift is Pillement, another china pattern, the design of which was taken from that of the drapes which hung in the boudoir of Marie Antionette in Versailles.

The newest trend in glassware is the oversized glass.

DREAM HOUSE

Hill House Proves Dreamer's Delight

This is the fifth in a series of five articles dealing with the problems of a young couple building their first dream house.

By BETSY LOCHRIDGE

When their brick and yellow board house on the hill was completed, Bettijo and Rodney Cook found it all they had dreamed—both inside and outside it was a home just right for them.

A giant brick fireplace with a built-in warming oven is the heart of the Cook's home. The decor is early American.

From an old print which hangs over the fireplace Bettijo has taken the colors of the living room—soft reds, yellow and cafe au lait. The geometric print of the wallpaper is duplicated in the fabric of the sofa cover, window seat cushions and curtain ruffle.

Furniture in the living room is hand-made of aged cherry. For more length and a feeling of spaciousness, Bettijo has used a cafe au lait wall-to-wall carpet which is slow to show dirt. The cupboard and shelves are of pine. An eye-catcher in this room is an antique lamp. Bettijo bought the shade at the dime store and covered it with the same paper she used on the walls

Highpoint of the Cook's bedroom is the giant 84x84" bed which they designed and had made after a year of sleeping on a sofa-bed. The Cooks upholstered the deep scalloped walnut headboard with a heavy textured bedspread, a replica of the one which covers the bed. This same fabric is used in the seats of the bedroom chairs. Since the huge bed dwarfed ordinary night tables, the Cooks bought a cherry card table which they use both as writing desk and night table.

In the sitting room, which doubles as a second bedroom, the walls are light blue. The couch, covered in the same provincial print used in the cottage curtains, can be made into a bed. A feature of this room is an old curly maple rocker, a Cook family heirloom.

Pine cupboards and gay provincial prints make the Cooks' combination kitchen and breakfast room as cozy and warm as it is efficient.

Since both the Cooks work, their home is decorated with an eye to casual, easy living and efficient housekeeping

What every investor should know—about Canada

You hear that it's big and it's booming, that its resources are vast, its potentials great, its future bright.

But if you feel that you "can't miss" in Canada—or that any stock you buy is bound to go up—well, you're wrong!

Because securities in Canada, just like anywhere else, come in a wide variety of values—as well as all degrees of risk. And "penny" speculations are usually worth a dime a dozen at best.

That's why we decided to make the most realistic study we could of long-range Canadian opportunities . . . thoroughly examined the major factors that might influence your investments—and just published our findings in a 48-page booklet called "Canadian Investments".

In turn, the booklet surveys each of Canada's major resources and industries, explores their problems and possibilities.

It covers her government, history, and policies . . . talks manpower, taxes, and foreign trade.

If you'd like to read a realistic report on just where Canada stands today—where she may stand tomorrow—read "Canadian Investments".

There's no charge, naturally. We'll mail a copy if you just address—

Survey Show Causes Of South's Income Lag

Resource, Labor Wastage Seen Blocking Area's Growth

By ALEX JOINER

Why is it Southern income, after a decade of unparalleled industrial growth, is still almost one-third lower than that of the other 32 states?

Caldwell Walker, business trends editor of Manufacturers Record, studied the situation from all angles and came up with two explanations:

1. An insufficient exploitation of its own raw materials. 2. An incomplete utilization of an inactive pool of potential labor.

RESOURCES VITAL

Resources form the foundation for any industrial progress, Walker points out in the third of three articles on per capita income in Dixie. This becomes doubly true in periods of high business activity when industry is performing at capacity rate, he maintains.

In natural resources the South matches, or excels, any other region in the United States. But while they are being used at "commendable rates," more are being exported to other regions than are being used in the South itself, Walker points out.

"More complete exploitation of its own raw materials presents for the South an opportunity which alone should enable the region to reach top level incomes," he states.

At the same time the South's inactive pool of potential labor considerably exceeds that of the rest of the nation, the study shows.

For the other 32 states, 39 per cent of all population is engaged in private enterprise of one sort or another. In the South the figure is 35 per cent.

"Small as this percentage differential may seem in itself, it represents an idle labor pool amounting to almost 2,000,000 persons," Walker writes.

UNUSED LABOR

Women and stay-at-home farmers head the list of unused human resources, he points out.

Southern women, Walker continues, have been slower than their Northern and Eastern cousins to leave the home for shop or factory. How much of this is from choice, how much from lack of opportunity, is "still a question."

Too many farmers, on the other hand, stick to the soil, sharing among themselves incomes that dwindle to the "point of meagerness" by reason of the division, whereas many might be engaging in other enterprise to the "prime benefit of all," Walker adds.

If Southern farmers won't go away to distant factories, the factories must be brought to them, the writer says.

And locating them in the heart of raw material areas and using the labor force in and around lesser urban centers can go far toward helping the South realize its income potential.

SOUTHERN HOG MARKET

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 21—(Federal-State)—Livestock receipts totaled 250 cattle, 425 calves, and 1,050 hogs at the seven major packing plants at Albany, Columbus, Moultrie, Thomasville, and Tifton, Ga.; Dothan, Ala., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Hog prices were steady to 25c higher early, but later trend uncertain in part of the area due to the embargo on the movement of swine and all pork except canned into Georgia. And a reportedly similar embargo is in effect for Alabama. Early transactions at the major southeastern plants included medium and choice soft and semi-hard 180 to 240-pound barrows and gilts at $20.50 to $21. At Moultrie, choice soft and semi-hard 190 to 230-pound offerings brought $21.50, and 160 to 180-pound barrows and gilts sold at $20.75. Most plants reported medium and choice 160 to 180-pound averages at $20 to $20.50, and 140 to 160-pound barrows and gilts at $17 to $19.50. Choice 235 to 270-pound offerings brought $20 to $20.50, and heavier weights brought $18.50 to $20. Medium and choice sows sold from $15 to $18.25.

Atlanta Produce

On the Atlanta wholesale fruit and vegetable market receipts were lighter over the week end, but trading was just fair to rather slow according to the Production and Marketing Administration. All kinds of beans, yellow squash, field peas and greens were rather scarce by Monday morning. Few prices, however, were higher than those of Friday morning.

Western pears were weaker and supplies increased from Georgia with bulk Pineapple pears jobbing mostly around 1.25 bulk per bushel. Georgia bushel baskets of U. S. No. 1 peaches averaged lower as Hale Havens 1⅞-inch and up were 3.75, some Elbertas sold for 3.50 with few 2-inch minimum at 4.00. Florida oranges held at mostly 4.00 box and grapefruit generally 3.25. Sugar Futures

NEW YORK, July 21— (AP) —Domestic sugar futures broke sharply today on selling influenced by the re-allocations of a 200,000-ton domestic beet sugar quota deficit to other areas by the Department of Agriculture.

Coming on the heels of a re-allocation of a 200,000-ton Philippines deficit late in June, the latest action upset the confidence of traders over the price outlook. Dealers estimated that the latest re-allocation just about made the 192 sugar marketing quota of 7,700,000 short tons fully effective. It still is expected that the quota itself will have to be increased later to cover a forecast consumption of the entire year of 8,000,000 tons or better.

World sugar futures were irregular, there were reports that Holland had bought some Cuban raws at 4.20 cents a pound f. o. b. Domestic raws were quiet. Philippine raws for early August arrival were offered 6.45 cents a pound delivered, which was the price paid by an Eastern refiner last Friday.

Demand for refined was fairly good.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Sales of cotton textiles were slow Monday. Prices were about unchanged but there was an increase in resale offerings of the popular 80 square print cloth at 20⅜ cents a yard, off ⅛ cent from mill level. Dealers thought this represented a desire on the part of some speculators to sell goods previously purchased around 19½ cents a yard. Dealers watch the steel strike developments closely for the possible impact on the demand for cotton goods. The Navy purchasing office will open bids on Aug. 7 for 1,100,000 white cotton T-shirts.

The wool goods market was slow. The London wool market continued to display strength.

Demand for rayon goods was limited at the higher prices quoted by mills. Some converters showed no inclination to follow the rise because there has not been commensurate increase in finished goods values.

1,500 Buyers At Southern Jewelry Show

Fall buying and filling in of reduced inventories produced brisk business here Monday during the first day of trading at the fifth semi-annual Southern Jewelry Show, officials said.

Some 1,500 buyers are attending the show from 10 Southeastern states. More than 115 lines are being shown at the Ansley, Peachtree on Peacheree and Piedmont hotels, Show Manager Charles Fram of Atlanta said.

(For a closeup of what's being featured at the show, read Yolande Gwin's story in the Women's Section.)

The show, which runs through Wednesday, is sponsored by the Southern Jewelry Travelers Association. New officers elected Sunday include Larry H. Kinard, Atlanta district manager for 1881 Rogers Silver, president and Fred Board, district representative for Elgin National Watches, vice-president. Fram, general manager of Southern Jewelry Magazine, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Cotton Futures Trading Slow

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Cotton futures closed 45 to 70 cents a bale higher today. Trading was slow, with price movements narrow.

Favorable crop news led to early commission house and New Orleans selling, with losses extending to 70 cents a bale. The market recovered in later trading as short covering by earlier sellers found offerings limited. Mill buying was restricted and mostly scaledown in nautre.

Dealers in the Worth Street Textile Market reported demand for cotton goods was slow. Prices were about unchanged, however, except for some speculative reselling of the popular 80 square print cloths at 20⅜ cents a yard, off ⅛ cent from mill levels.

Private advices said there were showers over most of Texas and Oklahoma over the week-end which were considered beneficial for the cotton crop. Hot weather and insect control measures have steadily reduced weevil activity in most sections of the cotton belt, it was reported:

Stocks Idle; Volume Hits 9-Week Low

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, July 21—The Stock Market merely went through the motions of operation today as prices ended about on dead center. Traders shied away from doing anything more than carrying out a minimum of business as a new breakdown developed in the negotiations to end the long steel strike, and evidence mounted of industrial strangulation if production of this basic necessity continued halted. However, the Dow industrial average was up $1.01.

The market also was faced with another dose of a national presidential political convention as the Democrats assembled in Chicago to select a standard bearer. If the temper of the usually active traders follows that exhibited during the Republican convention, business will be small and price changes narrow. That was the case today.

In the dullest volume since May 19, transactions on the Stock Exchange diminished to 780,000 shares, compared with 1,020,000 shares on last Friday. While a few more issues declined than advanced there was little choice between the final tabulation which showed 375 out of the 1,036 stocks traded lower, 360 higher and 291 unchanged. However, strength in a few components making up the industrials in the New York Times index allowed the composite rate to show an increase of 0.22 point.

Standard of Indiana slipped ¼ despite the stock dividend, but the New Jersey company rose 1⅛ points to a close of 80¼ on a turnover of 5,600 shares. Amerada went ahead 3¼ but Barber Oil declined 2½ points.

Glenn Martin continued to find favor among traders and led the list in volume on 13,400 shares and with a price appreciation of ½ point at 10¼. The steels finished mixed. U. S. Steel, most active in the group, gained slightly with just the reverse in Bethlehem. The automotives generally strengthened with Chrysler up ¼ point at 77¼ and General Motors ⅝ at 58¼.

Dow Chemical with a gain of 1¼ and a similar advance in Goodrich Tire were the strong spots in their respective divisions.

Southern Co. Share Earnings Listed at $1.19

Consolidated net income of the Southern Co. in June was $1,575,588 as compared to $1,430,288 for the same month last year, it was announced Monday.

The June increase made consolidated net income for the 12 months ended June 30 total $19,268,479, or $1.19 per share on 16,172,720 shares of stock outstanding. Income was $16,306,585 and earnings 98 cents per share on 16,306,494 shares outstanding for the same period last year.

The Southern Co. comprises the Georgia, Alabama, Gulf and Mississippi Power Co's.

Most Grains Forge Ahead

CHICAGO, July 21—(AP)—A let-up in hedging pressure, which resulted from smaller receipts of cash grain at major terminals, enabled wheat to give a pretty good account of itself on the Board of Trade Monday. It was ahead more than a cent at times.

The rest of the market, with the exception of oats, also forged ahead. At one time July soybeans sold at $3.23, one one cent under the OPS ceiling, but offerings became heavy at that point and the contract retreated.

Wheat closed ⅞-1¼ higher, July $2.28¼, corn ½-⅞ higher, July $1.79, oats ¼ lower to ¼ higher, July 78⅛-78, rye 1¾-2¼ higher, July 2.01¾, soybeans ⅞ lower to ½ higher, July $3.31¼-½, and lard 5 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher, July $11.05.

SEASONABLE WARNING

Safety Council Cautions On Hazards of Lightning

Georgians who work (or play) outdoors are warned that danger of death or injury from lightning is greatest in the summer season when thunderstorms are frequent.

Lightning—which can and sometimes does strike twice in the same place—killed 11 persons in the state last year.

The Greater Atlanta Safety Council reports that 162 Georgians have been killed by lightning in the past 12 years.

Death rates from lightning are higher in Georgia and other Southern states than in most other parts of the nation, the Safety Council officials noted.

Reasons for the higher death rate here, they said, are the longer summer when thunderstorms are likely and the large percentage of the population in rural areas where most of the fatalities occur.

TREE SHELTER RISKY

Lightning takes about 300 lives a year in the nation, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company statisticians estimate. About one-fourth of all deaths from lightning, they say, occur among people who seek shelter under or near trees.

Lightning deaths, they report, are four times as frequent among men and boys as among women, reflecting greater exposure.

P. A. Springer, safety engineer for the Greater Atlanta Safety Council, said high places are the most dangerous during a thunderstorm. If you must remain outside, try to find shelter in a gully, a cave or the base of a cliff. Second best is a grove of trees—but take care not to stand under the tallest tree.

SAFETY MEASURES

Other suggestions for protection from lightning include:

1. Choose shelter, if possible, in large metal or metal-frame buildings or dwellings protected by independently grounded lightning rods.

2. Avoid the immediate vicinity of electric light circuits, lightning conductors and downspouts, screened doors and windows (especially if open), stoves and fireplaces, telephones or any metal objects projecting through wall or roof.

3. Keep away from isolated trees, wire fences, wide open spaces, small sheds and shelters in exposed places.

4. If in swimming, get out of water during thundershower.

'MORE EQUIPMENT'

American Papers Impress French Farm Editors

Nine editors of French farm newspapers and magazines who visited The Constitution Monday were impressed by the "large number of farm features in the newspaper—and the modern mechanical equipment in the plant.

One of the editors, Jean Vidilles of Paris, said he also was surprised to find Americans in general were "quiet and calm."

"I had always thought they were rather frantic and noisy," he admitted, "but they really are not!"

Vidilles is general secretary of the National Federation of French Tobacco Growers and managing editor of "The Voice of the Tobacco Growers," a farm paper with 120,000 subscribers.

MORE PAPER

Vidilles said American newspapers had "much more paper" than those in France where newsprint is scarce. He said consequently there were more farm pictures, features and news in the papers here.

The French editor said farm papers in his country usually are devoted to news about a single crop. For example, he said, there is a paper for fruit growers, one for tobacco growers, one for wine growers and one for dairymen.

He said the newspaper plants in France and this country were similar—but the plants here have more equipment. He was surprised to find "a typewriter for each person" in The Constitution's newsroom, explaining French newspapers had only a few typewriters.

Vidilles said France produced 60,000 tons of tobacco last year, but, unlike Georgia tobacco, it was dried in the open air. He also noted that tobacco raising is usually a "family affair" in France, with the whole family doing the field work. He said there were not as many tractors and mechanical implements in his country as in the United States.

ONE-MONTH TOUR

The French editors are on a one-month tour of the United States, studying the relationship between farmers, newspapers and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Their tour is under the auspices of the Mutual Security Agency, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Besides Vidilles, the editors include Jean Adophe Vuaille, Simone Michelle Skliar dite Sclar, Rene Armand, Philippe Antoine Susini, Eugene Nogues, Jean Massin Silvain Andre Gorse and Mrs. Berthe Angiboust. They are accompanied by two interpreters, Therese Roussel and Cyrille de Klemm, and W. A. Sumner, professor of agricultural journalism, University of Wisconsin.

Hog Imports Barred To Halt Disease

Field inspectors of the State Department of Agriculture fanned out to Georgia's borders Monday in an effort to stop all pork and swine shipments into this state and protect Georgia's huge livestock industry from a swine disease that already has struck hogs in other sections of the country.

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder last Friday ordered a 30-day embargo on all shipments of swine and fresh pork into Georgia when an outbreak of vesicular exanthema was discovered among hogs shipped from the midwest into neighboring Alabama.

The danger to Georgia swine was made more acute Monday when two carloads of hogs from Missouri were found to be infected with the disease in an Atlanta railroad yard.

State Department of Agriculture field inspectors were called into Atlanta Monday from dairies and livestock sales barns all over Georgia. They swarmed around Dr. Clower's offices for instructions and then fanned out to the borders to establish check points along rail and highway routes entering Georgia.

Sales Tax Suit Aimed At Lockheed

The state of Georgia is moving toward a showdown test with Lockheed Aircraft Corporation to determine whether that company will have to pay the state's three per cent sales tax on materials it uses in building bombers for Uncle Sam.

Albert Dozier, head of the sales tax unit of the State Department of Revenue, said Monday he is filing a test assessment against Lockheed for sales taxes due the state. The test claim involves only about $800, Dozier said, but includes the tax on many of the items the plant buys for its Marietta operations.

Dozier said he assumed that Lockheed, on receipt of the assessment notice, would file action in Cobb County Superior Court, claiming the assessment illegal. The way would then be paved for a court decision.

If the courts should hold that Lockheed must pay the sales tax, it would mean additional revenue for the state running into the millions of dollars, Dozier said. He added that he believes Lockheed should pay the tax because the company is building planes for the government on a "cost plus basis."

Informed of Dozier's move, Lockheed officials said:

"The judge advocate general of the Air Force and tax officials of the Department of Justice have instructed Lockheed that in their opinion Lockheed has no liability for sales tax, and therefore payments of sales tax should be contested in the courts.

"Lockheed Aircraft Corporation at the Georgia Division, Marietta, is under a fixed-fee contract with the Air Force," they added.

Your Mind's MIRROR

By LAWRENCE GOULD

Do premature babies know when they are hungry?

Answer: They are the best judges, report Drs. Janet B. Hardy and E. O. Goldstein in the Journal of Pediatrics. Three groups of 50 premature babies each were studied as to their food consumption, gain in weight and length of stay in hospital under three different feeding methods. Members of Group A were fed at stated intervals a scientific ration based on their weight; those of Group B were fed partially on demand after the second week, while those of Group C had "demand feeding" from the day after they were born. The C group gained fastest and were able to go home soonest, with the A's at the other end of the scale.

A Rhyme a Day

"Woman who shot husband tells police, 'We were playfully scuffling with a pistol which I did not know was loaded.'"—News item.

"The female is more deadly than . . . the male," as Mister Kipling said . . . but if you quote that to some man . . . he smiles at you and shakes his head . . . No man believes this statement true . . . until he puts it to the test . . . and, consequently, quite a few . . . are laid to their eternal rest.

I speak from observation, not . . . from something I have read or heard . . . and though that may not be a lot . . . I know, for sure, it is absurd . . . to think because she isn't strong . . . she can be rudely pushed around . . . and, as for me, I do not long . . . to be some six feet underground.

Therefore, I do the best I can . . . to either pacify or shun . . . the species that's more deadly than . . . the male, with that unloaded gun . . . also, to be polite and kind . . . and thoughtful of my gentle spouse . . . but you can look and you won't find . . . a pistol lying 'round my house.

Views on Calcium Shared by Others

Lest some racketeer tell his gullible customers that my teachings in reference to calcium metabolism or utilization in the body and calcium "deposits" or calcification in the tissues or organs are "unscientific," it may be well to quote here from two or three recognized authorities, whose views, I submit, corroborate what I have repeatedly stated, namely that calcification or deposit of calcium or calcareous material in the arteries, in the joints or in other tissues or organs is the consequence and not the cause of disease, injury, strain or degeneration.

Speaking of atrophic arthritis, otherwise called rheumatoid arthritis, Margolis (Arthritis and Allied Disorders, Hoeber, N. Y.) says:

"In its later stages the pathological process is characterized by calcification. . . ."

Speaking of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). Best and Taylor (Physiological Basis of Medical Practice, Wood, Baltimore) says:

"The most pronounced changes occur in the intima" (lining membrane of arteries), "though degeneration of the elastic tissue, fibrosis and calcification of the media" (muscle coat of arteries) "are also seen. . . . The pronounced tendency for calcification to occur in areas undergoing fatty change" (that is, fatty degeneration).

Speaking of diseases of the arteries Osler (Practice of Medicine, Appleton, N. Y.) said:

"Calcification of the arterial wall follows fatty degeneration and sclerosis. . . ."

Do not misunderstand the significance of degeneration. The medical sense of the word is given in Webster, but Stedman's medical dictionary defines it as "a retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost" (or more precisely, gradually declines) "and the living substance becomes converted into an inert mass."

If at 35 you can still run a mile, jump over a 4-foot hedge, roll somersaults, hold your breath 40 seconds or have a baby without trouble, you're oke. If at 45 you can no longer do such things you have passed your peak and started down the other side; gradual decline of functional power; degeneration.

I'm sorry, but I've been trying to teach you how to keep young ever since you began wearing long pants or short skirts as the case may be, and you have paid no heed because you considered such stuff of interest only to old crocks. But the routine of living habits I recommended to preserve youth and stave off premature decline are fun—described in detail in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite, for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.
